News for your house: The CRD’s curbside blue box recycling program now accepts polycasted containers, including milk cartons and juice boxes. See CRD website for more info. At UVic, drop them off in the special bins in the SUB.

Publications: What’s the significance of the social economy as a concept and vehicle for addressing social, economic and environmental policy issues in Canada? This e-publication of UVic’s Social Economy Research Hub brings together a sample of papers on that theme.

Business ethics: managing corporate citizenship and sustainability in the age of globalization by Dirk Madden and Andrew Crane “is a lively and engaging textbook that tackles one of the most pressing issues facing business today: how to be a good corporate citizen in a complex multiple stakeholder world. It covers the foundations of business ethics and applies these concepts to each of the corporation’s major stakeholders,” according to publisher Oxford University Press.

The World Bank has released Inclusive Green Growth: The Pathway to Sustainable Development, which includes these key messages:

- Greening growth is necessary, efficient, and affordable
- Obstacles are political and behavioral inertia - not the cost of green policies
- The way forward requires a blend of economics, political science and social psychology

The three links above (and more!) are in the Centre for Social and Sustainable Innovation repository on Gustavson’s SharePoint site. To maneuver in SharePoint, go to https://share.uvic.ca/busi/ then on the left-hand side View All Site Content then in Document Libraries click on Shared Documents. That’s where you’ll find the folder with actual documents, like the World Bank report, journal articles, a list of sources for data and statistics to use in business ethics classes, and more.

Help with curriculum changes:
The Learning and Teaching Centre in the Harry Hickman Building offers one-on-one consultations and Curriculum Design Institutes for individual instructors or instructor teams, related to course structure and design, teaching and assessment strategies, and individual department needs.

For new and new-ish faculty members: From August 12 to 17, LTC offers an intensive program that highlights unique features of the UVic teaching environment and current discipline-specific best practices in teaching. The LTC staff want to help you save time in your teaching preparations, feel more satisfied with the learning outcomes of your students, and above all to teach better and more confidently. Priority will be given to instructors who started teaching at UVic within the last three years. Info and registration here.
