Research conference
Fourth Annual Academic Conference on Corporate Social Responsibility, University of Washington, Tacoma, July 11-12, 2013. Scholars from multiple disciplines, including accounting, finance, management, and marketing assemble will discuss current CSR research and identify points of intersection across disciplines.

Research presentations, discussions, and deliberation about the future of CSR research and the needs of practitioners are all on the menu, along with presentations by editors Rich Bettis (Strategic Management Journal) and Donald Moser (The Accounting Review) about publishing CSR-focused articles in top-tier journals.

For more information or to register for the conference, visit tacoma.uw.edu/clsr/academic-conference or download the printer-friendly flyer.

→ If you’re supervising a PhD student who’s doing qualified research, please encourage her or him to investigate the scholarships that are available. Call 253.692.5685 to inquire about eligibility.

Green economy
Building the Green Economy: a forum for green businesses, eco-friendly organizations and eco-savvy consumers
1-4 pm on Saturday, June 15th, Cook Street Village Activity Centre, 380 Cook St.
Hosted by Murray Rankin, MP, with Peter Julian, MP, Jill Doucette (Synergy Enterprises and Greater Victoria Green Economic Initiative), Guy Dauncey (BC Sustainable Energy Association), Eric Denhoff, (Canadian Hydrogen and Fuel Cell Association), Nathalie Chambers (Restoration Ecologist, Madrona Farm, Chef Survival Challenge), and Teri Hustins (Oscar and Libby’s and founder of Shop Local Victoria).

Finance, First Nations
Under Securities and Exchange Commission regulations, firms must disclose all payments to governments for its projects in Canada, Finland and Mexico. But there is considerable debate over whether first nations, who claim the right to self-government, should be covered by the SEC rules. “Issue of SEC disclosure rules applying to first nations still debated,” by Shawn McCarthy in the Globe and Mail on June 2, 2013, explains some of the issues.

Entrepreneurship, social responsibility
“New ‘World Entrepreneur’ has a beef with Canada.” Well, not with the whole country. World Entrepreneur of the Year Hamdi Ulukaya, founder of the best-selling yogurt brand in the US, Chobani Inc., would like to open a plant in Canada but has been hobbled by red tape. Rick Spence explains the problem and Ulukaya’s views on social responsibility in this Financial Post article from June 8, 2013.
