Required: Sessional Instructors for Canadian Studies Courses

Fall 2015

Canadian Studies Program

The Division of Continuing Studies in collaboration with the Faculties of Humanities, Social Sciences, and Fine Arts offers the Canadian Studies program. For more information about Canadian Studies program please see the UVic calendar or contact the Arts and Science Program area in the Division of Continuing Studies.

CS 101, Introduction to Canadian Culture
An introduction to the multidisciplinary study of cultural structures and expressions in Canada, including such forms as literature, the fine arts, mass media and communications.

One section of CS 101 (1.5 units) will be offered from September to December, 2015. This section is scheduled for Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4:30 to 5:50 pm. This course is open to all regular undergraduate students as well as to credit and non-credit students in the Canadian Studies diploma and certificate programs.

CS 201, Issues and Ideas in Canadian Environmentalism
An exploration of the connections between Canadian culture and environment including an examination of our cultural worldview both past and present. Investigates how our sense of nation, national destiny and religious, cultural and ethnic inheritance has shaped and continues to shape our ideas of the wilderness, the Canadian environment and environmental issues.

One section of CS 201 (1.5 units) will be offered online from September to December, 2015. This is a distance offering. This course is open to all regular undergraduate students as well as to credit and non-credit students in the Canadian Studies diploma and certificate programs.

Qualifications:

For CS 101 a Ph.D. is preferred in English or a related area along with knowledge of Canadian social issues and/or Canadian literature and the arts, and teaching experience at the undergraduate level.

For CS 201 a PhD is preferred in Humanities or Social Sciences along with knowledge of historical and contemporary issues relating to Canadian environmentalism. Online teaching experience is preferred.
