Code of Conduct for Education Loans

The US Department of Education code of conduct stipulates the following:

- In order to prohibit a conflict of interest when it comes to private education loans, employees with responsibility for US loans are prohibited from the following:
  1. Making revenue-sharing arrangements with any lender;
  2. Receiving gifts from a lender, a guarantor, or a loan servicer;
  3. Entering into arrangements providing financial benefit from any lender or affiliate of a lender;
  4. Directing borrowers to particular lenders or refusing or delaying loan certifications;
  5. Offering funds for private loans;
- All agents with responsibility for US loans are reminded at least annually of the code.
