A CRITICAL APPROACH TO POLITICAL GEOGRAPHIES

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This paper focuses on the two-way relationship between space and power. It investigates how political processes shape human geography, and conversely, how assumptions about geography underscore global politics. We will examine the key themes, concepts, and theories that define the study of politics from a geographical perspective. Students will gain a critical understanding of and appreciation for the historical and contemporary challenges of sovereignty, territoriality, governmentality, identity, citizenship, difference, violence, genocide, colonialism, and war. The course culminates with the themes of emancipation, direct action, and anarchism, which will allow students to consider alternative configurations of space and power in keeping with the paper’s critical approach.

As a fourth-year seminar, our approach to political geographies will be largely theoretical, where you are required to think critically about the concepts we explore though your engagement with the readings and during our meetings. This module is run as a seminar, which means that it requires your active participation and is thus necessarily reading intensive. In addition to reading materials, short (and occasionally feature length) films will be shown during class time.

KEYWORDS: bio-politics; post-colonialism; power; resistance; sovereignty; space

COURSESPACES
I will post the course syllabus, outlines of slide presentations, and any additional relevant materials on the course’s COURSESPACES website.

POLICY ON LATE ASSIGNMENTS

- Assignments submitted ON TIME will receive my full attention & useful feedback.
- Please speak with me well in advance if you anticipate a delay in submitting your work, particularly when dealing with illness or family conflicts.
- 5% per day penalty for late assignments including weekend days. For example, 5% will be deducted from the assignment (due in class) if the assignment is submitted later in the day. If the assignment is submitted the next day, 10% will be deducted from the assigned grade, and so forth.
- Assignments submitted more than one week late will NOT be graded.
- You may submit assignments electronically to meet a deadline but a hard copy MUST be submitted as soon as possible afterwards for marking. If a hard copy is not submitted, your assignment will NOT be marked.

 All assignments must be done exclusively for this course.

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism in writing term papers will not be tolerated. Plagiarism detection software will be used in case of doubt. Plagiarism means representing someone else’s work as your own. It is a serious offence, punishable by academic sanctions. When you incorporate the words, ideas, graphics, or other products from someone else’s work into your projects, you must give credit by providing a citation and reference to the source work.

It is your responsibility to:
- understand what plagiarism is,
- be familiar with and understand the information on plagiarism outlined in UVic Libraries’ plagiarism policy at http://library.uvic.ca/instruction/cite/plagiarism.html
- be familiar with UVic’s policies on student responsibilities, conduct, discipline, and academic offences, as described in the Undergraduate Calendar.

Students are reminded that submitting for credit any academic work which has been submitted (or where credit has already been obtained) in another course is listed among academic offences.

RELIGIOUS OBSERVANCE

Please notify me immediately once you know that any date proposed for assignments or papers conflict with dates of special significance in your religion. We will arrange alternative dates to accommodate individual needs.
ACCESSIBILITY

Students with diverse learning styles and needs are welcome in this course. In particular, if you have a disability/health consideration that may require accommodations, please feel free to approach me and/or the Resource Centre for Students with a Disability (RCSD) as soon as possible. The RCSD staff are available by appointment to assess specific needs, provide referrals and arrange appropriate accommodations http://rcsd.uvic.ca/. The sooner you let us know your needs the quicker we can assist you in achieving your learning goals in this course.

POSITIVITY AND SAFETY

The University of Victoria is committed to promoting, providing and protecting a positive and safe learning and working environment for all its members.

Discriminatory language is not welcome or tolerated in lectures, seminars, tutorials, or written work. This includes but is not limited to sexist, racist, ethnocentric, or homophobic language.

GRADING SYSTEM

As per the 2012-2013 Academic Calendar (Note that Geography does NOT use numerical scores in the final grades):

OUTCOMES & RESPONSIBILITIES

EXPECTED OUTCOMES

This course has two primary objectives:

- To understand that there is a distinct relationship between space and power, and to gain an appreciation for how this association functions.
- To develop a deeper understanding of the key theoretical concerns and debates that inform and continue to shape political geography as a sub-discipline.
- To allow students to develop a critical appreciation for the complex roles and multiple ways in which political geographies are implicated within and woven through our everyday lives.

You can expect to acquire the following skills:

- Critical Thinking: by applying seminar discussions and readings through weekly reflections, students will develop an ability to think critically about the geopolitical ideas that have historically shaped and continue to inform political events.
- Communication: to develop written communication skills through written work, and to develop verbal communication skills and self-confidence through seminar discussions and co-facilitation as well as student presentations.
- Time Management and Personal Responsibility: by attending seminars and by handing in assignments on time.

STUDENT RESPONSIBILITIES

- Attending and participating in seminars
- Reading required materials. Seriously, you MUST do the readings. Seriously!
- Actively participating in class discussion
- Leading student presentations, and co-facilitating seminars.
- Writing weekly reflections on the assigned readings.
- Writing a final think piece
ASSessment & assignment details

Attendance & Class Participation - (10%) - ongoing throughout term

- This includes engaging in discussion, asking questions, offering answers, and active listening, where none is prioritized over the others. If you regularly attend classes, show up to class prepared, and remain committed to and engaged with the course materials throughout the term, this is an easy 10% to achieve!

Short Written Responses to the Readings (8 weeks) - (5% each x 7 responses = 35%) - due throughout term - in class

Length: 1 page (approximately 250 words)

- One thoughtful question, comment, and/or criticism on each reading assigned for the weekly class meetings for the weeks 2 through 11. You are responsible to hand in 7 responses, which means that 3 weeks out of our meetings you get a free pass and are not required to hand in an assignment. Its up to you to choose what weeks you don’t want to hand in an assignment, but you are still responsible for doing the readings that week. These responses should be no more than one paragraph per reading.

Class Presentation / Seminar Facilitation - (25%) - once during the term, dates to be determined

Length: 30 minutes

- Students will be asked to prepare a presentation on the weekly readings. In essence, your role is to reflect thoroughly on the topic under consideration, offer some critical reflections on the readings, and engage the class with some questions of importance that you have drawn from these readings. This is not dissimilar to what you will have prepared for your weekly written responses each week, but you are expected to go a little deeper. What I mean by this is that I want you to be creative with your presentation and bring some additional value to your reflection on the concepts under consideration. Thus, how you choose to present to the class is entirely up to you, and I encourage you to be as creative as possible. You might have us watch a film and then ask us questions that help us to think about the topic or concept. You might want to read poetry (possibly even your own!), or do a short play that helps us think about the idea. You can make a poster presentation, or present a piece of art or music you have created in response to the concept, or that someone else has created, but that helps you (and hopefully us) to think about and understand an idea. You can bring a video game that you enjoy (or maybe not enjoy), have us play it in class and discuss how it might exemplify a concept. You can bring personal photographs, home videos, scrapbooks, stamp collections, and use them to explain and demonstrate the idea under consideration. Maybe you have found a website, a newspaper article, or a map that you want us to consider. Or maybe you want to take us all on a short field trip around the university to show us how a concept applies within the university setting itself. If you opt for the conventional approach, and simply want to give us a Power Point presentation, that’s fine too. Your options are limited only by your own imagination, and I encourage as much creativity as possible! Wherever your interest and talent lies, I’m all for it! The only fixed criterion is that you have approximately 30 minutes to share your creativity, reflections, and ideas about the topic with us. We will determine who presents what week during our first class meeting, although there may be some rescheduling should individuals join or withdraw from the class.

Think Piece - (30%) - due December 4th, 2014

- Throughout the course you are encouraged to think critically about the theoretical and empirical relevance of the issues we will explore, as this will prepare you for the final think piece. The think piece will consist of two essay questions. In the first question you will have to demonstrate your critical engagement with (at least) two of the course’s major themes. This question will be open, so that you may decide which topics you choose to write about, but you will need to demonstrate that you have gone beyond the actual readings in your reflections by considering the discussions we have had in class, and hopefully by doing some additional outside reading and thinking on the topics you choose to tackle here. In this essay I want you to demonstrate that you understand the two concepts you have chosen at a theoretical level, I want you to indicate how these two topics are interrelated, and you will need to also to show me some ‘real world’ application of the concepts by giving me empirical examples. During the weeks of our meetings, you will need to think of one or more empirical examples, possibly by drawing on a newspaper article, a TV show or film, a song or music video, a personal relationship, or some other life experience, and then in your final think piece tell me how the concept makes sense at an ‘everyday’ level to you.

- In the second question, I want you to reflect on your own personal journey through this course by discussing what your assumptions were at the beginning of the course (i.e., assumptions about a particular concept, about the world, about what a course should be, about your role as a student, about my role as a professor, about human behavior, or assumptions about power and space more generally etc.) and how that changed after completing the course. In other words, I want you to tell me what was the most profound thing you learned (or ‘unlearned’) in the course, and how you can apply this idea going forward in your life at a practical level. As such, your task is to reflect on and then tell me why this course was useful to you… and lets just hope it is useful in some capacity otherwise we’ve wasted each other’s time!

IMPORTANT ASSIGNMENT NOTES:

Assignment: For all assignments use 12 pt. Font, Times New Roman, 1-inch margins, number pages, and a list of references. DO NOT include a title page (save paper!), but DO include your title, your name, my name, the course number, and the date at the top of the first page. Staple your paper in the top left corner (NO FANCY BINDERS!!!). Please follow the word length requirement.

Referencing: Students are required to follow a standard referencing style, using in text citations and bibliography (usually AUTHOR-DATE in human geography). Exact formatting can be of your own choice, but please examine and follow a geography journal such as Annals of the Association of American Geographers, Transactions of the Institute of British Geographers, or Progress in Human Geography for examples of proper citation styles.
