Degree	Course Requirements	Research Methods courses	Electives
Graduate certificate	Graduate certificate includes first four courses of the MA/MEd program		IED 530 and 531 could potentially be offered to FoE students outside of our own programs as separate courses. Our graduate programs are cohort-based, and courses offered within these programs are offered only to students in the cohort. The same is potentially true for IED 572. It could conceivably be offered outside of our own graduate programs, as a separate course for FoE students in general. When it is taught for our own graduate programs (every two years), it is only open to the students in the cohort.
MA MEd	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• IED 572: Indigenous Epistemologies</li> <li>• LING 577: Global Context of Language Revitalization</li> <li>• IED 530: Indigenous Research Methods OR LING/IED 531 Community-based initiatives in Language Revitalization</li> <li>• LING: 501: Linguistics for Language Revitalization</li> <li>• IED 557: Indigenous Additional Language Learning</li> <li>• IED 520: Program &amp; curriculum development in LRunits</li> <li>• IED 510: Leadership &amp; Governance for Language Revitalization</li> <li>• IED 594: Proposal and literature review (1.5 units each)</li> </ul>	IED 530 – Fall 2022 1.5 units
Phd	IED does not have a PhD program. We bring students in through the SPARR program, on the same schedule as the Graduate Certificate and Master’s programs (every two years; next intake Summer 2022). The PhD students take their coursework along with the graduate certificate and MA/MEd students. IED is planning on putting through a number of Cycle 2 program and course changes for our graduate programs. The information provided here reflect these changes.
