DEPARTMENT OF CURRICULUM & INSTRUCTION

This MEd focused in Educational Technology is designed for educators, learning support, and administrators, at the K12 or post-secondary level, who wish to develop their competencies to integrate technology to enhance and transform teaching and learning. The program will emphasize developing literacies with digital, networked, and open technologies as we explore the major shifts in education such as personalization, connectedness, openness, assessment, and access.

Graduates will be well positioned to provide leadership in the transformations toward more open inquiry-based learning and diverse classroom modalities, such as blended, online, open, and multi-access. Our graduates will develop personal learning networks to carry with them into their professional practice as we make use of video conferencing, social media, and collaborative apps to support innovative projects.
