MILR Writing Week

The 2024 MILR cohort participated in a Writing Week from Feb 2-6, 2026, with 9 students participating in person and 4 attending online. The students worked incredibly hard on their MILR projects and most of them are aiming to cross the stage during 2026 June convocation. Their projects are ambitious and exciting.

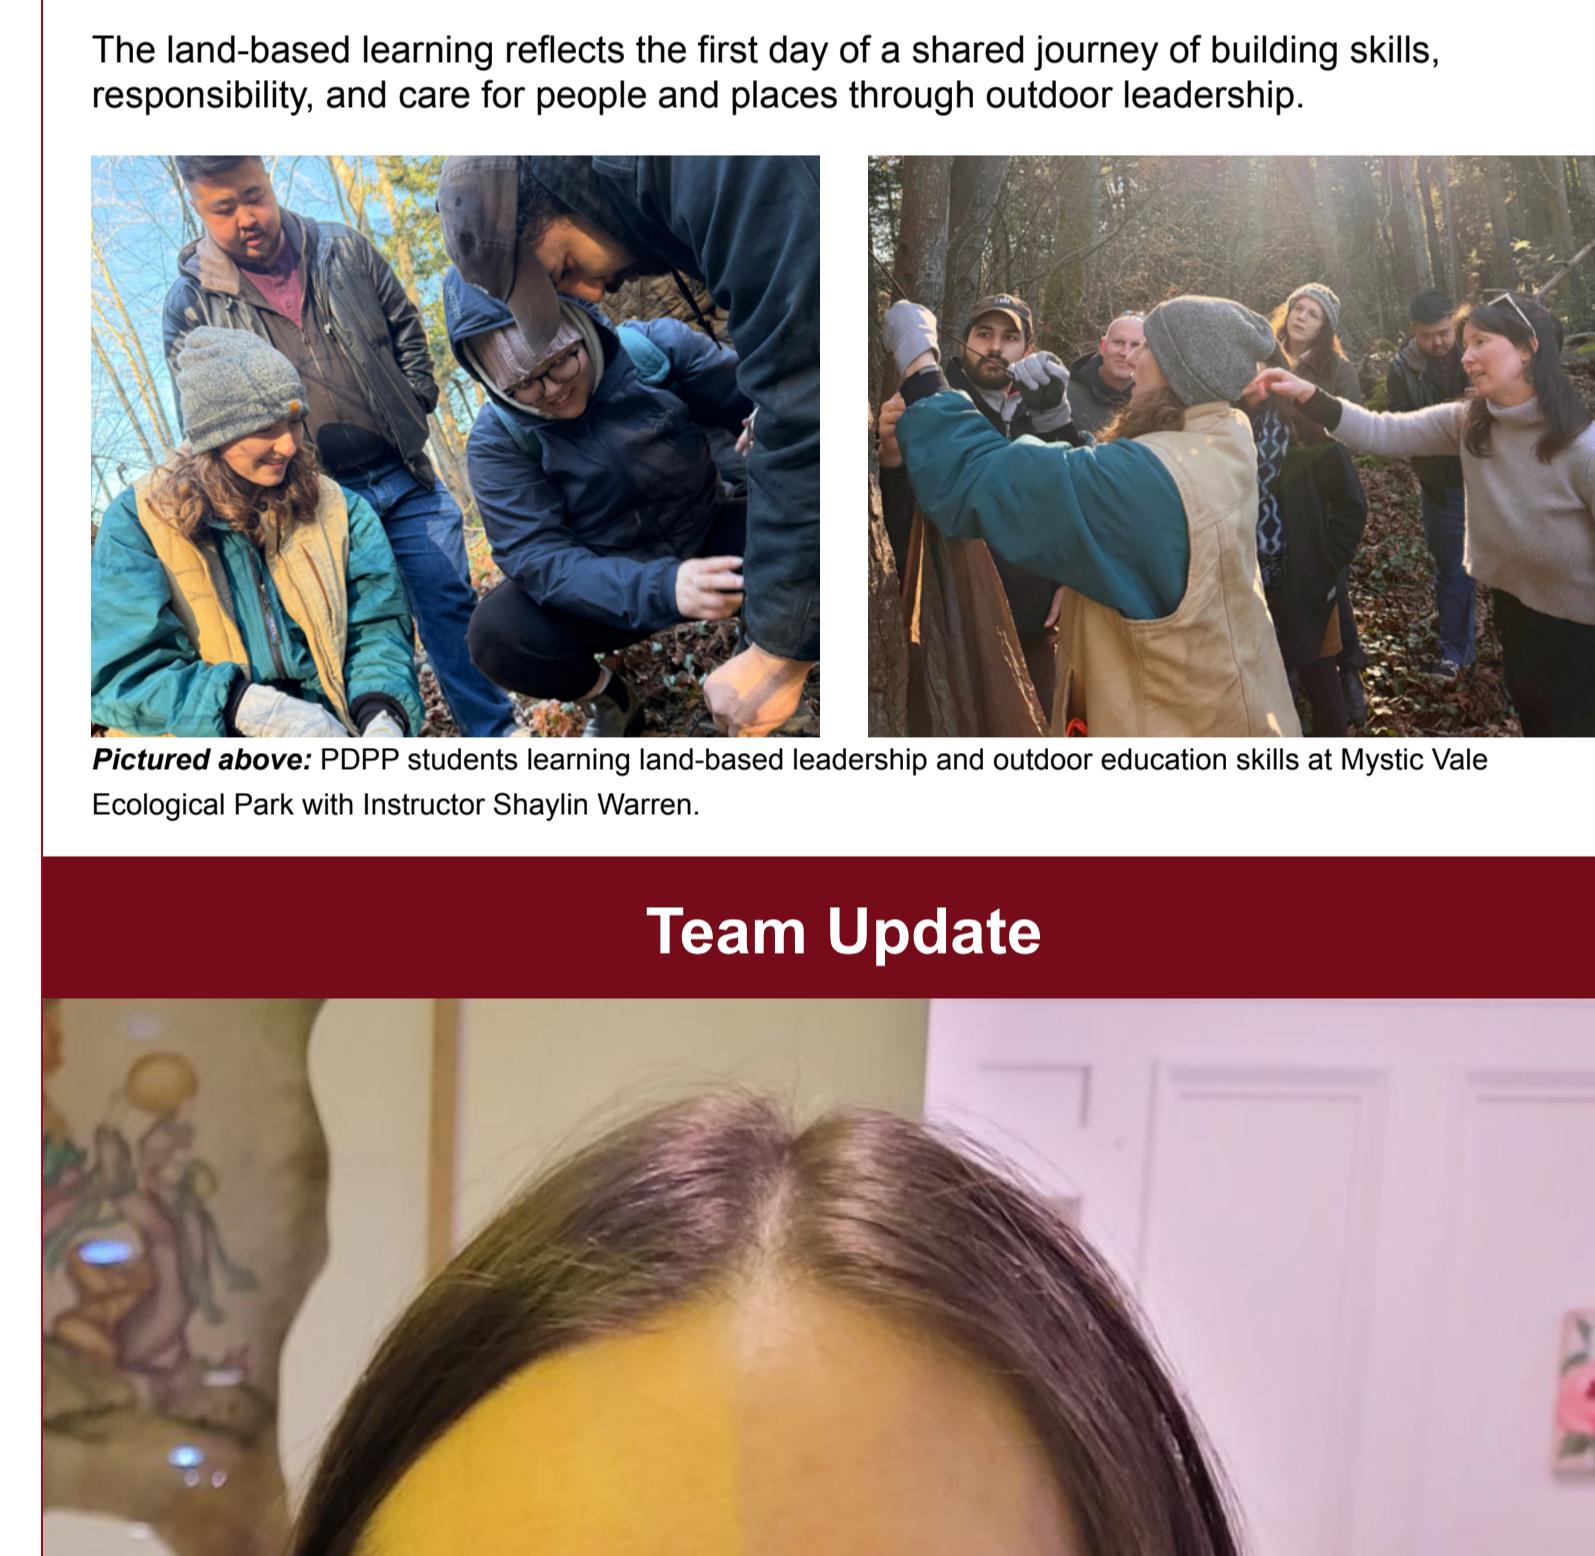

The students shared their deep gratitude for the department's commitment to creating a safe, comfortable, and welcoming learning environment. They also expressed appreciation for the teachers, mentors, and staff whose guidance has shaped their learning throughout the MILR program. Many reflected on the value of the program not only for the knowledge and skills gained, but also for the strong network of colleagues and classmates - individuals with shared experiences who continue to support and uplift one another.

So all in all it was a great week, and it's lovely to know that IED is supporting students in such a good way.

Learning on the Land:

OCC Field Leader Certification at Mystic Vale Ecological Park

The Outdoor Council of Canada's (OCC) Field Leader Certification marked an important step in strengthening land-based leadership and outdoor education skills of the PDPP students. Led by instructors Shaylin Warren and Kate Cruz, the first of two days took place in Mystic Vale Ecological Park, offering a hands-on learning environment rooted in relationship with the land.

The students explored the scope of practice for Field Leaders, event and trip planning considerations, and essential technical skills. Practical learning included knot tying and tarponology, emphasizing safety, adaptability, and preparedness in outdoor settings.

The land-based learning reflects the first day of a shared journey of building skills, responsibility, and care for people and places through outdoor leadership.
