This edition brought to you by Sustainable Development Goal 11: Make cities and human settlements inclusive, safe, resilient and sustainable

Strip it and chip it

Here’s a list of dates and places at which charitable organizations on southern Vancouver Island have arranged a chipping service for undecorated Christmas trees. Please be generous with your donation for this service that supports the environment and local agencies.

Get your compost to the curb

The Capital Regional District of BC, which is home to UVic and most of the people who work here, has an extensive recycling and composting program. Now there’s even an app for automatic reminders to get your compost and recycling bins to the curb.

There’s also a Ready, Set, Sort! game to help you figure out what goes where.

Share and repair

The Community-Based Research Lab in the Geography Department at UVic is hosting a Repair Café
- Tuesday, January 9
- 2-5 pm
- David Turpin Building B215

Bring your damaged or broken items and see if someone can fix it.
Bring your skills and help someone fix something!
The event is free and everyone is welcome.

We know for a fact that there will be needles, thread, spare buttons, and a sewing machine – and someone who knows how to use them all! Basic clothing repairs or quick DIY lessons available.

For more info, check the Facebook page.

Rethinking community

Reprising an Utne Reader article about the surprising benefits of trailer-park life.

PRME and inspiration for the coming year(s)

This past year the Principles for Responsible Management Education celebrated its 10th anniversary. It was also the second year that the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) have been in effect, including a significant increase in the impact that management education is having in the realisation of these goals.

The PRiMEtime blog was started in 2011 by Giselle Weybrecht in collaboration with the PRME Secretariat as a way of showcasing exciting initiatives that PRME signatories (like Gustavson) were taking part in.

PRiMEtime is now a database of good practices from around the world with more than a thousand examples of how management education is embedding sustainability and the six principles into the work that we all do.

In this 2-part year-end post, PRME reviews the examples featured this year, roughly organised around the SDGs.

Simply click on the links within the posts to read the full articles.