

Centring Black Social Work Voices: Creating a portal to Black futurities across borderlands

Join us for this online panel discussion reflecting on Black histories and futurities in social work as part of honouring Black excellence beyond the bounds of February and celebrating Social Work Month.

Blackness in social work contains within it many possibilities. Relational ways of being and creating community within and across Blackness, can be generative portals transmuting constraints of anti-Black racism within our social work profession. Blackness is a kaleidoscope, experienced in as many textures as it has roots across the diaspora. In this dialogue, we will share our journeys to wholeness, ancestral power, and remembering how to heal Black futures. Remembering how to heal Black futures includes honouring legacies and contemporary realities of helping and healing in Black communities, within and beyond social work that centre beauty, hope, connection, and futurities.

For zoom registration, click here.

Thursday, March 5th, 1:30pm - 3:30pm Pacific

Dr. Judy White
Professor Emerita
Faculty of Social Work
University of Regina

Dr. Anna Ortega-Williams
Associate Professor
Silberman School of Social Work
Hunter College, CUNY

Dr. V.C. Rhonda Hackett
Associate Professor
School of Social Work
University of Victoria

Centring Black Social Work Voices is part of the UVic School of Social Work Black Futurities 2026 events.

