MA in Child & Youth Care

The School of Child and Youth Care's innovative graduate program is designed to prepare CYC practitioners for leadership roles in advanced clinical practice, supervision, staff training and other senior support positions in services for children, youth and their families.

Our graduate students at SCYC are a diverse and dynamic group who enjoy opportunities to work on research projects with internationally recognized academics. The program has an applied focus, preparing professional practitioners in the CYC field for leadership in:

- advanced theory and practice
- training and supervision skills
- program planning & community development
- related service support roles
- applied research skills

The MA degree consists of five core courses, a supervised practicum, four or five electives and either a research thesis or an applied research project. Our flexible program design allows students to select electives and a practicum that furthers their own area of interest, study and career goals including becoming registered with the BC Association of Clinical Counsellors.

We will be admitting students on an annual basis for September entry, with limited enrolment. The course delivery schedule will permit either full-time or part-time study.

Application Deadlines:

December 15 – International Students

January 31 – Domestic Students
