Hvað er með álfum?
Elves in Iceland
across the Conversion

Alaric Hall, University of Leeds

www.alarichall.org.uk alaric@cantab.net

handout and presentation at:
http://www.alarichall.org.uk/imc2011 Superstition?

* term of abuse coming to prominence in the Reformation

* implies a left-over: something that’s fossilised

* more helpful to talk about ‘beliefs’

What is reality?

* physical, objective reality

* social reality

* something weirder than social reality: a cultural discourse?
Sigur Rós, Ágætis byrjun, 1999: ‘Starálfur’ (‘stare-elf’)

'Starálfur' ('stare-elf')
Sigur Rós, Ágætis byrjun (1999): ‘Starálfur’ ('stare-elf')

Björk Guðmundsdóttir & tríó Guðmundar Ingólssonar, Gling-Gló (1990): ‘Litli tónlistamaðurinn’ ('the little musician')
Sigur Rós, Ágætis byrjun (1999): ‘Starálfur’ (‘stare-elf’)

Björk Guðmundsdóttir & tríó Guðmundar Ingólssonar, Gló (1990): ‘Litli tónlistamaðurinn’ (‘the little musician’)

Hallgrímur Helgason, 101 Reykjavík, 1994
Sigur Rós, Ágætis byrjun, 1999: ‘Starálfur’ (‘stare-elf’)
Björk Guðmundsdóttir & tríó Guðmundar Ingólssona, Gling-Glí (1990): ‘Litli tónlistamaðurinn’ (‘the little musician’)
Hallgrímur Helgason, 101 Reykjavík, 1994
Ágúst Guðmundsson, Mávahlátur, 2001
Sigur Rós, Ágætis byrjun, 1999: ‘Starálfur’ ('stare-elf')

Björk Guðmundsdóttir & tríó Guðmundar Ingólsson, Gling-Gló (1990): ‘Litli tónlistamaðurinn’ ('the little musician')

Hallgrímur Helgason, 101 Reykjavík, 1994

Hallgrímur Helgason, 101 Reykjavík, 1994

Ágúst Guðmundsson, Mávahlátur, 2001

Grímur Hákonarson, Sumarlandið, 2010
Our earliest evidence: elves in Anglo-Saxon England (C7–11)

* cause illness (mostly mind-altering illnesses)
Our earliest evidence: elves in Anglo-Saxon England (C7–11)

- cause illness (mostly mind-altering illnesses)
- human (ælfæ ‘elves’ is grammatically an ethnonym)
- cool enough to name your children after (Ælfred, etc.)
- associated with pagan gods (ese)
- associated with hills and valleys (ylfedene, now Elveden, Suffolk)
- distinct in most evidence from monsters like þyrsas, dweorgas, eotenas, entas
- associated in learned texts, with varying degrees of closeness, with demons of Christian mythology
Our earliest evidence: the áes síde in Ireland

_Serglige Con Culainn (C9×C11)_

Cú Chulainn went then and put his back against a pillar stone, and he was downcast, and a sleep fell upon him. He saw two women come towards him. One wore a green mantle; the other a purple mantle in five folds. The woman in the green mantle came to him and laughed at him, and struck him with her horse-whip. The other came to him, too, and laughed at him, and struck him in the same way. And they continued for a long time, each of them in turn coming still to beat him, so that he was almost dead. Then they went from him. The Ulaid observed that, and they said that he should be wakened. ‘No’, said Fergus. ‘Do not disturb him. It is a vision that he sees.’
Our earliest evidence: skaldic verse

Bragi Boddason, Ragnarsdrápa (C9)

Flaut of set víð sveita sóknar álfrs, í golfi, hræva dógg, þars höggnar hendr sem fœtr of kendu. Fell í blóði blandinn brunn ólskakki runna—þat ’s á Leifa landa laufi fátt—at haufði.

Streamed over seats with sweat [?≡ blood] of the álfr of attack [=warrior], on the floor, corpses’ dew [=blood], where hewed hands/arms like legs/feet they recognised. Fell in, with blood mixed, a river, ale-giver of bushes [=men; men’s ale-giver=king] (that is on Leifi’s lands’ [=the sea] leaf [the sea’s leaf=decorated shield] drawn) at his head.

Corpses’ dew streamed over seats with the sweat/blood of the álfr of attack on the floor, where hewed hands like feet could be recognised. The ale-giver of bushes fell head-first into a river mixed with blood; that is depicted on the leaf of Leifi’s lands.
Our earliest evidence: skaldic verse

Other words for supernatural beings used like alfr in kennings:

Kennings for women: ásynja (‘pagan goddess’), dír (valkyrie type woman), bönd (‘bonds, goddesses’, rarely), norn (‘supernatural female with powers over the future’, rarely.)

There are lots of words for supernatural beings which are not used, such as jötun, þurs or dvergr.
Our earliest evidence: Eddaic verse

Völuspá, st. 48 (MS C13)

What’s up with the Æsir?
What’s up with the Álfar?
The whole of Jötunheimr groans, Æsir are at in a meeting, dvergar howl
before their stone-doors,
the wise ones of the cliff.
Do you want to know more—or what?

Hvat er með Ásum?
Hvat er með Alfum?
Gnýr allr Jötunheimr, Æsir ro á þingi, stynja dvergar
fyr steindurum, veggbergs vísir.
Vituð ér enn—eða hvat?

Völuspá st. 48 supernatural beings

monstrous people (fólk)

- e.g. gods (æsir, álfar),
- ethnic others (finnar)
- e.g. outlaws, berserkers, walking dead (skógarman, berserkir, draugar)

human in-group

- e.g. giants (jötnar, pursar),
- dwarfs (dvergar)
Iceland!

* c. 1220–40: Snorra Edda (ljósálfar and døkkálfar as paganised versions of angels and demons)

* c. 1300–: romances (kennings, but also narratives: prose, rímur, ballads)

* c. C16: prayers

* c. C17: theological debates

* C19–20: folktale collections

* C20–21: popular culture
Iceland!

* c. 1220–40: Snorra Edda (ljósálfar and døkkálfar as paganised versions of angels and demons)

* c. 1300–: romances (kennings, but also narratives: prose, rímur, ballads)

* c. C16: prayers

* c. C17: theological debates

* C19–20: folktale collections

* C20–21: popular culture

Thanks, Haukur!
The king had a golden pipe and blew into it loudly. Then Austvestan saw that hillocks and hills, hummocks and rocks opened up; and out came álfar and nornir, dvergar and hulдумenn. The king took a purse full of gold and threw it out onto the plain, and those who were outside accepted it and divided it up to share it between themselves. The king blows once more into his pipe, and then the cliffs, glaciers and mountain-tops opened up and out came þursar and risar and bergbúar and all kinds of óþjóðir, and rushed out onto the plain. Then the king took another purse and the king threw it out to them, and they received it and divided it up.
Álfar and monsters, álfar and environment

Jarlmanns rímur

Blæs þá ræsir býsna hátt beint í þípu eina úr holtum stoltum hefur sig brátt huldufólk með sveina.

Then the king blows rather loud, right into a pipe. From their gallant hillocks the huldufólk stir quickly with their boys.

Fornar nornir fá þeir séð fara þær nú til leika álfar sjálfr eru þar með og út á völlinn reika.

They could see pagan nornir going now to play;
the álfar themselves are also there, and rush out on the plain.
Álfar and monsters, álfar and environment, prayers and curses

Buslubæn (‘Busla’s bidding’) from Bósa saga ok Herrauðs

Tröll ok álfar ok töfrnornir, búar, bergrisar brenni þínar hallir, hati þik hrímþursar, hestar streði þik, stráin strangi þik, en stormar æri þik, ok vei verði þér, nema þú vilja minn gerir.

May tröll and álfar and magic-nornir, dwellers (cf. bergbúar, ‘mountain-dwellers’), mountain-giants, burn your halls, frost-þursar despise you, horses bugger you, the straws sting you, and gales drive you mad, and woe befall you, unless you do my will.
Álfar and monsters, álfar and environment, prayers and curses

Dæglur (‘Day-prayers’); perhaps sixteenth-century

Geymdu í dag við grimmum tròllum, gjám og skriðum, skaparinn mig, fyrrir álfa kind og öndum snjöllum er atskot veita hörmulig, meinfuglum og móðum öllum, myrkri og þoku, þess beiði eg þig.

Protect me today, Creator, from cruel trolls, crevasses and landslides;
from elvenkind and clever spirits that serve up the horrible at-skot;
from harm-birds and all mist, darkness and fog, I beg this of you.
Álfar, sex and gender

Bergen rune-stave

Ríst ek bótrúnar, ríst ek bjargrúnar, einfalt við álfrum, tvífalt við tròllum, þrifalt við þursum [...] Ek sendi þér, ek sé á þér, ylgjar ergi ok óþola. Á þér renni óþoli ok ‘ioluns’ móð.
Sittu aldri, sof þu aldri
...
ant mér sem sjalfri þér

I carve remedy-runes, I carve protection runes, once over by álfr, twice over by tròll thrice over by þursar
[...] I send to you, I see on you, she-wolf’s lust and restlessness. May restlessness come over you and a jötunn’s fury. Never sit, never sleep.

... Love me as you love yourself.
Álfar, sex and gender

c. C10 Anglo-Saxon medical texts mentioning ælfsiden

Völundarkviða (English-influenced?)

Serglige Con Culainn

C12 Marie de France’s (Anglo-)Norman lais of seductive fées (male and female) late C13 Njáls saga: ‘Skarphéðinn mælti: “Sjáið þér rauðálfinn sveinar?” ’ (‘Skarphéðinn said “Do you see the red-elf, lads?” ’)

South English Legendary description of elves

c. 1350 Gullkársljóð

C16 Manuscripts of Ólafur liljurós and Hrólfs saga kraka
Iceland!

* c. 1220×40: Snorra Edda (ljósálfar and døkkálfar as paganised versions of angels and demons)

* c. 1300–: romances (kennings, but also narratives: prose, rímur, ballads)

* c. C16: prayers

* c. C17: theological debates

* C19–20: folktale collections

* C20–21: popular culture
Sigur Rós, Ágætis byrjun, 1999: ‘Starálfur’ (‘stare-elf’)
Sigur Rós, Ágætis byrjun (1999): ‘Starálfur’ (‘star-elf’)

Björk Guðmundsdóttir & tríó Guðmundar Ingólssonar, Gling-Gló (1990): ‘Litli tónlistamaðurinn’ (‘the little musician’)

Sigur Rós, Ágætis byrjun, 1999: ‘Starálfur’ (‘stare-elf’)

Björk Guðmundsdóttir & tríó Guðmundar Ingólssonar, Gló (1990): ‘Litli tónlistamaðurinn’ (‘the little musician’)
Sigur Rós, Ágætis byrjun, 1999: ‘Starálfur’ (‘stare-elf’)

Björk Guðmundsdóttir & tríó Guðmundar Ingólssonar, Gling-Gló (1990): ‘Litli tónlistamaðurinn’ (‘the little musician’)

Hallgrímur Helgason, 101 Reykjavík, 1994

Ágúst Guðmundsson, Mávahlátur, 2001
Sigur Rós, Ágætis byrjun, 1999: 'Starálfur' ('stare-elf')

Björk Guðmundsdóttir & tríó Guðmundar Ingólsson, Gling-Gló (1990): 'Litli tónlistamaðurinn' ('the little musician')

Hallgrímur Helgason, 101 Reykjavík, 1994

Ágúst Guðmundsson, Mávahlátur, 2001

Hallgrímur Helgason, 101 Reykjavík, 1994

Grímur Hákonarson, Sumarlandið, 2010