INFORMATION

The I-witness Field School is designed to explore ways in which the Holocaust is memorialized at various central European historical sites, museums, and monuments and provides students an opportunity to acquire a deeper understanding of antisemitism, racism, religious intolerance, homophobia, and the stigmatization of the mentally and physically disabled communities. Students will also build an understanding of how the lessons of the Holocaust are relevant in today's world and will reflect on the consequences of hatred and the legacies of genocide.
