

GRS 372: Archaeology of the Roman World

Fall 2025 TWF 1:30-2:20 pm

Professor Alejandro Sinner

Roman art and archaeology connects the political and social development of the Roman people to their artistic expression and preserved architectonic remains. The course places emphasis on topics concerning architecture, sculpture, and the minor arts, with an attempt to evaluate them as expressions of Roman culture.

Learning Outcomes:

- ✓interpret the political and social development of the Roman people by looking at their artistic expression and preserved remains.
- ✓organize your ideas and communicate your opinions effectively by participating in several in class assignments and discussions.
- ✓improve of your writing and research skills by writing a research essay

