Course Description:
What is just? What is justice? Who gets to decide and do we all have to agree and obey? Plato's dialogues the Apology and the Crito, which the class will read, address these questions in the context of the trial and conviction of the ancient Greek philosopher Socrates.

Course Outcomes/Objectives:
• improved ancient Greek reading and linguistic skills;
• knowledge of basic components of Platonic philosophy;
• knowledge of significance of Socrates' trial and death;
• improved ability to engage critically with philosophical and literary narratives;
• improved writing and research skills (through essay assignment);
• improved oral communication skills (through class presentation)

Course Pre-/Co-requisites:
• GREE 202 or permission of the department
