The course will explore two exceptionally well-preserved ancient cities and their environs in an effort to determine what they reveal about urban life in Roman Italy. Attention is given to urban planning overtime, domestic architecture, the messages of graffiti, commercial and industrial life, and the daily activities of the cities’ inhabitants.

Students will learn:

- Use archaeological and historical evidence to learn about the many histories behind this two cities;
- Gain knowledge of who were those who perished in 79AD. How did they lived? Who did they prayed?
- Explore new technologies such as 3D modeling and Virtual reality. Do not just study Pompeii, experience it!
- Learn to communicate your knowledge and opinions effectively.

GRS 374  Pompeii and Herculaneum
TWF 9:30-10:30 (Spring 2020)
Professor: Alejandro Sinner