Gilly has worked as a video-journalist, producer and reporter for the BBC in London and Edinburgh over the past fifteen years. She worked on the Westminster Live programme in London in the 1990s and then moved back to her native Edinburgh at the time of the devolution of powers to Scotland in 1999. She reports, produces and makes films for the two leading programmes about Scottish politics: Holyrood Live and The Politics Show (Scotland). Gilly has also made a range of documentary films and radio programmes about British, European and Canadian politics and society. She is currently working on a BBC-commissioned documentary about the Hudson Bay Boys from Scotland and their leadership role in the Canadian north to the present day.

Gilly's talk will be of immense interest to students and staff interested in British and Scottish politics and the career of a very successful video-journalist and documentary film-maker.

This event will be sponsored by the European Union Centre of Excellence in Canada: University of Toronto and University of Victoria, the European Studies Program and Department of Political Science at UVic, and the SSHRC Strategic Knowledge Cluster, Canada-Europe Transatlantic Dialogue .
