Course Description

William James once described philosophy as "the unusually stubborn attempt to think clearly." In this course we will take a philosophical approach to a variety of controversial and sometimes emotionally charged moral issues facing us today. Topics we will address include the treatment of non-human animals, pornography, abortion, our handling of the environment, prostitution, euthanasia, and our response to human starvation and suffering. As we approach each of these issues, we will consider what various philosophers have said makes an act right or wrong and see whether their theories help us in solving moral problems. We will make a determined effort to develop well-reasoned positions on these issues, articulating and evaluating arguments on both sides of the debates. In short, we will be thinking in a philosophical way about how we should live our lives.

Texts

All of the readings for this course will be available through the CourseSpaces page. To access the page, go to coursespaces.uvic.ca and log in with your regular network ID.

Course Requirements (See schedule below for dates.)

First Paper	25%	Exam One	20%
Second Paper	30%	Exam Two	25%

The exams will be in-class exams consisting of short answer questions. If you miss an exam due to a documented illness or accident, contact me immediately to schedule a make-up.

The papers will be opportunities for you to develop and defend a position on one of the issues we have been discussing in class. The first paper will be 1200 words maximum. The second will be 1500 words maximum. Papers are due at the beginning of class on the days indicated on the schedule below.

Late Papers

If you have a legitimate documented reason for submitting your paper late, please notify me immediately. Unexcused lateness will result in a 5% reduction in the grade for that assignment each day. No essay will be accepted for grading after June 8 unless academic concession has been granted.

Plagiarism

Please familiarize yourself with the University Policy on Academic Integrity. It will be enforced in this course. You can find it online in the UVIC Calendar at <http://web.uvic.ca/calendar2017-05/undergrad/info/regulations/academic-integrity.html#>

Please Note: Anyone who does not write both of the two assigned papers will receive a grade of N for the course.

Information regarding accommodation of religious observance can be located in the UVIC Calendar at <http://web.uvic.ca/calendar2017-05/undergrad/info/regulations/religious-observanc.html>
