

LING 274 - How to Learn a Language (1.5 units) Spring 2027 – University of Victoria

designed by  freepik

(photo credit by freepik)

Schedule

Monday, Thursday – 1:00-2:30 pm

Prerequisites

No prerequisites

Description

This course explores current issues in second language learning, focusing on the linguistic, psychological, social, and instructional processes involved. It also examines strategies for developing language skills such as grammar, vocabulary, and pronunciation. In addition, the course considers the role of key learning activities, including comprehension, production, instruction, practice, and error correction, in the development of these skills.

Textbooks

Lightbown, P. M., & Spada, N. (2021). How languages are learned (fifth edition). Oxford: Oxford University Press.

Instructor

Hossein Nassaji: hel_nassaji@uvic.ca