Social Dimensions of Health seeks a Sessional Lecturer for

SDH 500B/600B: Interdisciplinary Methods Applied to Health Research

Appointment within CUPE 4163 (Component 3)

The Social Dimensions of Health program is an interdisciplinary graduate program spanning the Faculties of the Social Sciences, Human and Social Development and Education.

Applications are sought for the position of Sessional Lecturer for the Spring Term of 2019 to teach SDH 500B/600B: Interdisciplinary Methods Applied to Health Research. Please submit a cover letter outlining the applicant’s qualifications and teaching philosophy, a current CV, and the names of three references by email to the Interdisciplinary Programs Assistant (idpassis@uvic.ca), no later than 4:00 pm April 30, 2018.

The covering letter should indicate the candidate’s plans and expectations for the course. The course is 1.5 units and is offered for 3.0 lecture hours per week. In part II of the Fundamentals of Health Research course the interdisciplinary seminar covers fundamental topics and research methods used in interdisciplinary health research. Topics covered in the course include qualitative and quantitative research methods: basics in epidemiology, ethics, policy, health and wellness, grant and proposal writing, academic presentations, critical review for publication, knowledge transfer and developing community partnerships. Topics to be covered in the core courses are central to interdisciplinary health research scholarship and provide core competencies preparatory to the independent research component of the program.

The position reports to the Director of the Social Dimensions of Health Program, and is within CUPE 4163 Component 3. For more information on the program and its courses, please visit: http://web.uvic.ca/sdhealth/

In all appointments, preference will be given to those with a completed PhD in a relevant field and a combination of expertise and experience appropriate to the course concerned. The University of Victoria is an equity employer and encourages applications from women, persons with disabilities, visible minorities, and aboriginal peoples, people of all sexual orientations and genders, and others who may contribute to the further diversification of the University. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, in accordance with Canadian Immigration requirements, Canadian and permanent residents will be given priority. The University of Victoria reserves the right to fill additional teaching assignments from the pool of applicants for this posting.

Only those shortlisted will be contacted.
