
DISCRETIONARY SUPPLEMENTARY FORM

Eligibility

Applicants only qualify in the Discretionary category if their academic achievements or LSAT score have been significantly delayed, interrupted or adversely affected by:

- a) a medical condition or disability (physical, sensory, learning, addiction, mental illness, or similar condition or disability); or
- b) family or similar responsibilities and the consequent need to attend to these responsibilities or to maintain employment; or
- c) cultural, economic, or other relevant factors.

Selection of qualified Discretionary applicants will be made on the basis of the applicant's:

- a) achievements in occupational endeavours, and community, public service and cultural activities that indicate an ability to succeed in law school;
- b) academic performance in any educational or training program or courses; and
- c) LSAT scores within the past five years; and in the case of those applicants who have not completed the minimum number of academic units specified for admission in the Regular applicant category,

- d) whether it would be unreasonable to expect the applicant to complete such academic units prior to the commencement of law school.

It is extremely unlikely that applicants with less than two years of college or university courses will be admitted.
