What are you reading + watching + listening to this summer?

Our summer-2023 list
The UVic Graduate Student Law & Society Research Group acknowledges and respects the ləک̓wəŋən peoples on whose traditional territory the University of Victoria stands, as well as the Songhees, Esquimalt and W̱SÁNEĆ peoples whose historical relationships with the land continue to this day.

Many thanks to: our kind contributors, UVic-Faculty of Law, UVic-Libraries, The Diana M. Priestly Law Library, and UVic-Law Communications

Title: “What are you reading + watching + listening to this summer? Our summer 2023 list”
Prepared by: Esteban Vallejo Toledo and Eva Linde - UVic Graduate Student Law & Society Research Group
Victoria, British Columbia, Canada
Diana M. Priestly Law Library, Rm 302
June 2023
Contact: estebanvallejotoledo@uvic.ca & evalinde@uvic.ca

Images:
Picture on the cover: UVic-Law Communications
Picture of one of our library owls: Esteban Vallejo Toledo

Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs
CC BY-NC-ND
Why are we doing this?

We’re not trying to be popular this summer… But this list will be!

Rumor has it that reading lists are popular. They date back to the 19th Century and quickly started to be used for teaching. Schools, libraries, and students have contributed to their growing popularity for decades. Nowadays, many booklovers expect a reading list each summer.

The story of our reading list is a bit unusual. When Eva Linde dropped by Victoria last April, she asked me: “Hey, what will the next mass email be about? Another of our attempts to boldly go where no one has gone before?” The answer was “Yes! But we’ll try to take everyone with us this time.” Then, we realized that such a project was going to be challenging. Summer was coming; construction works were happening around the law library; everyone wanted to leave the Fraser Building as soon as possible; and we hadn’t organized a summer speaker series.

As four owls visited our law library, the idea of a summer reading list hit our heads… Summer reading lists are thrilling experiences. They are great means to share information and satisfy people’s curiosity. They are fun and connect people. It is true that there are many summer reading lists already. However, this is ours. Like most of our Group’s projects, this summer list is an attempt to connect all of us and enrich our academic experiences.

Our list is very special for five reasons. First, it is not limited to books. Second, UVic’s Chancellor and the Acting Dean of our Law School accepted to join us. Third, many of our instructors and guest speakers shared their summer picks too. Fourth, we have an anonymous inquisitive reader whose identity is more mysterious than Elena Ferrante’s 😊. If these reasons don’t convince you, here’s a fifth one: a lot of UVic librarians accepted to participate! Everybody knows that a list with resources that librarians recommend must be taken seriously. Librarians aren’t just friendly and organized people. They’re professionals who can do impressive things! If you don’t believe it, click here. 😊

Our list is very special thanks to our librarians and all the people who joined us. Thank you! Our 2024 list will come for sure. Wait for our next mass email! Meanwhile, we look forward to hearing from you as well as from more faculty members, more librarians, more guest speakers, and more LLM and PhD students.

Esteban Vallejo Toledo & Eva Linde
UVic Graduate Student Law & Society Research Group

P.S.: If you think that you know who our anonymous contributor and Elena Ferrante are, let us know!!! We’re not offering prizes but would love to read your comments.
Our contributor’s picks

Why are we doing this? ................................................................. iii

Aditi Gupta – Engineering & Science Librarian, Advanced Research Services .......... 3
Aman Gebru – Assistant Professor - The University of Houston Law Center Faculty ...... 3
André Paulo Pereira – Visiting PhD Candidate & Professor - University Federal of Roraima .............................................................. 3
Andrew Newcombe – Associate Dean, Academic and Student Relations – UVic Law ...... 4
Christian Schmidt – Special Projects Librarian .................................................. 4
Colin Macleod – Professor in law and philosophy - Chair of the Department of Philosophy 5
Contributions from an anonymous reader 😊 – UVic Law .................................. 5
Deborah Curran – Professor & Executive Director, Environmental Law Centre – UVic Law 6
Elizabeth Adjin-Tettey – Professor & Associate Vice-President Academic Programs – UVic ........................................................................................................... 6
Esteban Vallejo Toledo /ˈstɛbən vɛˈðʒəl oʊ tɛˈlɛðo / – PhD Student (ABD) – UVic Law ...... 6
Eva Linde – PhD Candidate – UVic Law .......................................................... 7
Gillian Calder – Associate Professor – UVic Law .............................................. 8
J. Matthew Huculak – Head, Advanced Research Services & Digital Scholarship Librarian 8
Jeremy Webber – Professor – UVic Law .......................................................... 9
Jessica K Mussell – Distance Learning and Research Librarian ............................. 9
Jessie Lampreau – Indigenous Initiatives, Law Librarian ..................................... 9
Jonathan Bengtson – University Librarian (Chair) ........................................... 10
Kathleen Matthews – Science Research Data Librarian; Research & Development Librarian ........................................................................................................ 10
Karen Munro – Director, Engagement and Learning & Acting Director, Law Library ...... 11
L. Jane McMillan – Professor, Chair of the Department of Anthropology – St. Francis Xavier University ........................................................................................................ 12
Lara Wilson – Director, Special Collections and University Archivist ................. 12
Marie-Claire Cordonier-Segger – Professor of Law - UVic & Visiting Chair of Sustainable Development Law and Policy - University of Cambridge ......................................................... 13
Marion Buller – Chancellor, University of Victoria ........................................ 13
Michael Lines – Learning and Research Librarian ........................................ 14
Monique Grenier – Science and Research Data Literacy Librarian.................. 14
Nicole Herron – Senior Supervisor & Access Services - UVic Libraries............ 15
Patricia Cochran – Associate Professor – UVic Law..................................... 15
Qian Liu – Assistant Professor – University of Calgary .................................. 16
Rebecca Johnson – Associate Director, Indigenous Law Research Unit & Director,
Graduate Program – UVic Law .................................................................... 16
Robert Lapper – David & Dorothy Lam Chair in Law and Public Policy Professor - UVic
Law ............................................................................................................. 16
Shahira Khair – Data Curation Librarian ....................................................... 17
Val Napoleon – Interim Dean – UVic Law, Professor & Law Foundation Chair of Indigenous Justice and Governance ............................................................. 17
Ying Liu – Librarian ..................................................................................... 17
Why did you choose them? Comments from some of our contributors:............. 18
Aditi Gupta – Engineering & Science Librarian, Advanced Research Services

  - MIT Press
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads

Aman Gebru – Assistant Professor - The University of Houston Law Center Faculty

- Critical Race Theory: An Introduction by Richard Delgado and Jean Stefancic
  - NYU Press
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads
- Copyright and Collective Authorship: Locating the Authors of Collaborative Work by Daniela Simone
  - Cambridge University Press
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads
- Choreographing Copyright: Race, Gender, and Intellectual Property Rights in American Dance by Anthea Kraut
  - Oxford University Press
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads

André Paulo Pereira – Visiting Professor & PhD Student - University Federal of Roraima

- The Wetiko Legal Principles: Cree and Anishinabek responses to violence and victimization by Hadley Friedland
  - UToronto Press
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads
- The Falling Skyes: words of a Yanomami Shaman by David Kopenawa
  - Belknap Press
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads
Andrew Newcombe – Associate Dean, Academic and Student Relations – UVic Law

- To boldly go where no court has gone before: Canada paves the way for transnational litigation against corporations for human rights abuses? by Vincent-Joël Proulx

Connecticut Journal of International Law, Vol. 38, No. 1, 2023

Christian Schmidt – Special Projects Librarian (click the superscript for comments)

- Calculating God by Robert J. Sawyer¹
  Tor Books
  UVic catalogue
  Goodreads

- The Heebie-Jeebies at CBGB’s: A Secret History of Jewish Punk by Steven Lee Beeber²
  Chicago Review Press
  UVic catalogue
  Goodreads

- The five laws of library science by Shiyali Ramamrita Ranganathan³
  Ess Ess Publications
  UVic catalogue
  Goodreads

- The rise of AI: implications and applications of artificial intelligence in academic libraries by Sandy Hervieux & Amanda Wheatley, eds.⁴
  Association of College and Research Libraries
  UVic catalogue
  Goodreads

Music picks:

  Stream from here (free)
Colin Macleod – Professor in law and philosophy - Chair of the Department of Philosophy (click the superscript for comments)

- Parfit: A Philosopher and His Mission to Save Morality by Dave Edmond

Contributions from an anonymous reader 😊 – UVic Law

- Files: Law and Media Technology by Cornelia Vismann
- The Code of Capital: How the Law Creates Wealth and Inequality by Katharina Pistor
- Marx: Towards the Centre of Possibility by Kojin Karatani
- Class, Race, and Marxism by David Roediger
- Race, Place, Trace: Essays in Honour of Patrick Wolfe by Lorenzo Veracini & Susan Slyomovics, eds.
- Liquidated: An Ethnography of Wall Street by Karen Zouwen Ho
Deborah Curran – Professor & Executive Director, Environmental Law Centre – UVic Law

- Making and Breaking Settler Space: Five Centuries of Colonization in North America by Adam J. Barker
- Do Glaciers Listen?: Local Knowledge, Colonial Encounters, And Social Imagination by Julie Cruikshank

Elizabeth Adjin-Tettey – Professor & Associate Vice-President Academic Programs – UVic

- Braiding Sweetgrass: Indigenous wisdom, scientific knowledge and the teachings of plants by Robin Wall Kimmerer

Esteban Vallejo Toledo – PhD Student (ABD) – UVic Law

ˈstɛbəŋ voˈdʒɛho toˈleːdo (click the superscript for comments)

A book + film for my research:

- Major Barbara by George Bernard Shaw

A book to continue celebrating Stefan Zweig:

- The Right to Heresy: Castellio against Calvin by Stefan Zweig
A book that is great (I won't finish it this summer):

- Chimalpahin's Conquest: A Nahua Historian's Rewriting of Francisco Lopez de Gomara's La conquista de Mexico by Francisco López de Gómara. Susan Schroeder, Anne J. Cruz, Cristián Roa-de-la-Carrera & David E. Tavárez, eds. & trans.⁹

A book to read with my niece:

- The tiger who came to tea by Judith Kerr¹⁰

A book to read with my nephews (we won't finish it this summer):

- Valley of the Birdtail: an Indian reserve, a white town, and the road to reconciliation by Andrew Stobo Sniderman & Douglas Sanderson (Amo Binashii)¹¹

A 1963 movie (that I'll definitely watch):

- The leopard (Il gattopardo) by Luchino Visconti¹²

Eva Linde – PhD Candidate – UVic Law

A book for my research:

- Picking Up the Slack: Law, Institutions, and Canadian Climate Policy by Andrew Green

A book that I'll read with my kid:

- Once Upon a Potty: Boy by Alona Frankel
Gillian Calder – Associate Professor – UVic Law

- Reconciling Truths: Reimagining Public Inquiries in Canada by Kim Stanton
  - UBC Press
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads

- Complaint! by Sara Ahmed

- Research Handbook on Law and Emotion by Susan Bandes, Jody Madeira, Kathryn Temple and Emily Kidd White, eds.
  - Edward Elgar Publishing
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads

- Emotions in the Law School Transforming Legal Education Through the Passions by Emma Jones
  - Routledge
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads

- Feeling Queer Jurisprudence Injury, Intimacy, Identity by Senthorun Sunil Raj
  - Routledge
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads

- Affect and Legal Education Emotion in Learning and Teaching the Law by Caroline Maughan, Paul Maharg, eds.
  - Routledge
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads

- The Passions of Law by Susan Bandes, ed.
  - NYU Press
  - UVic catalogue
  - Goodreads

J. Matthew Huculak – Head, Advanced Research Services & Digital Scholarship Librarian (click the superscript for comments)

- How data happened: a history from the age of reason to the age of algorithms by Chris Wiggins & Matthew L Jones
  - W. W. Norton & Company
  - UVic catalogue
  - Greater Victoria Public Library
  - Goodreads
Jeremy Webber – Professor – UVic Law (click the superscript for comments)

- Justice by means of democracy by Danielle Allen

Jessica K Mussell – Distance Learning and Research Librarian

- A World of Curiosities by Louise Penny

Jessie Lampreau – Indigenous Initiatives, Law Librarian

- Truth Telling: Seven Conversations about Indigenous Life in Canada by Michelle Good
- Valley of the Birdtail: an Indian reserve, a white town, and the road to reconciliation by Andrew Stobo Sniderman & Douglas Sanderson (Amo Binashii)

Podcasts:
- Land Back
- Taapwaywin: talking about what we know and what we believe
Jonathan Bengtson – University Librarian (Chair) (click the superscript for comments)

- In the Suicide’s Library: A Book Lover’s Journey by Tim Bowling¹⁶

Kathleen Matthews – Science Research Data Librarian; Research & Development Librarian

- Rehearsals for Living by Robyn Maynard & Leanne Betasamosake Simpson

- Woman, Watching: Louise de Kiriline Lawrence and the Songbirds of Pimisi Bay by Merilyn Simonds

- On the Origin of Time: Stephen Hawking’s Final Theory by Thomas Hertog

- Claiming Anishinaabe: Decolonizing the Human Spirit by Lynn Gehl

- Otter’s Journey through Indigenous Language and Law by Lindsay Keegitah Borrows

- To Share, Not Surrender: Indigenous and Settler Visions of Treaty-Making in the Colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia by Peter Cook et al., eds.

- The sea is not made of water: life between the tides by Adam Nicolson
- Paddling to Where I Stand: Agnes Alfred, Qwiqwasutinuxw Noblewoman by Agnes Alfred. Edited and translated by Martine J. Reid, ed., & Daisy Sewid-Smith, trans.

- Wilson Duff: Coming Back, a Life by Robin Fisher

- Visual Thinking: The Hidden Gifts of People Who Think in Pictures, Patterns, and Abstractions by Temple Grandin

- Becoming Kin: an Indigenous call to unforgetting the past and reimagining our future by Patty Krawec

- Resilience, Reciprocity and Ecological Economics: Northwest Coast Sustainability by Ronald Trosper

Karen Munro – Director, Engagement and Learning & Acting Director of UVic’s Law Library (click the superscript for comments)

- Frequently Asked White Questions by Ajay Parasram and Alex Khasnabish

- Unsettling the University: Confronting the Colonial Foundations of US Higher Education by Sharon Stein
L. Jane McMillan – Professor, Chair of the Department of Anthropology – St. Francis Xavier University

- Mass Casualty Commission’s Final Report
- Decarceration through Self-Determination: Ending the mass incarceration of Indigenous people in Canada by The West Coast Prison Justice Society
- Lost from Sight: Developing Recognition of Māori Law in Aotearoa New Zealand by Carwyn Jones
- Some hellish by Nicholas Herring
- Tales of Burning Love by Louise Erdrich

Music picks (artists):

- Kamasi Washington
- Jean-Michel Blais
- Lakecia Benjamin
- Brad Mehldau

- Morgan Toney
- Jeremy Dutcher
- Northern Cree
- Prince

Lara Wilson – Director, Special Collections and University Archivist (click the superscript for comments)

- The indigenous Paleolithic of the Western Hemisphere by Paulette F. C. Steeves
- Underland: a deep time journey by Robert Macfarlane
Marie-Claire Cordonier-Segger – Professor of Law - UVic & Visiting Chair of Sustainable Development Law and Policy - University of Cambridge

- Braiding Sweetgrass: Indigenous wisdom, scientific knowledge and the teachings of plants by Robin Wall Kimmerer
- The Ministry for the Future by Kim Stanley Robinson

Marion Buller – Chancellor, University of Victoria

- Dying from improvement: inquests and inquiries into Indigenous deaths in custody by Sherene Razack
- Red Nation Rising: From Bordertown Violence to Native Liberation by Nick Estes et al.
- Incarcerated stories Indigenous women migrants and violence in the settler-capitalist state by Shannon Speed
- Storying violence: unravelling colonial narratives in the Stanley trial by Gina Starblanket and Dallas Hunt
Michael Lines – Learning and Research Librarian (click the superscript for comments)

- The Haunting of Hill House by Shirley Jackson
- Best Short Stories of William Somerset Maugham by W. Somerset Maugham
- A Brief History of Equality by Thomas Piketty

Monique Grenier – Science and Research Data Literacy Librarian (click the superscript for comments)

- Sand talk: How Indigenous thinking can save the world by Tyson Yunkaporta
- How data happened: A history from the age of reason to the age of algorithms by Matthew Jones and Chris Wiggins
- Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow by Gabrielle Zevin
Nicole Herron – Senior Supervisor & Access Services - UVic Libraries

- Cloud Cuckoo Land by Anthony Doerr
  [Scribner]
  [Greater Victoria Public Library]
  [Goodreads]

- Butter, Honey, Pig, Bread by Francesca Ekwuyasi
  [Arsenal Pulp Press]
  [UVic catalogue]
  [Greater Victoria Public Library]
  [Goodreads]

- Hidden Valley Road: Inside the Mind of an American Family by Robert Kolker
  [Doubleday Books]
  [Greater Victoria Public Library]
  [Goodreads]

Movie picks:

- Barbie by Greta Gerwig
- Oppenheimer by Christopher Nolan

Podcasts:

- Island Crime
- Maintenance Phase
- Suspicion – The Billionaire Murders
- The King Road Killings
- You’re Wrong About
- Hot off the Mess

Patricia Cochran – Associate Professor – UVic Law

- Judgment: new trajectories in law by Thomas Giddens
  [Routledge]
  [UVic catalogue]
  [Goodreads]

- Judging from Experience: Law, Praxis, Humanities by Jeanne Gaakeer
  [Edinburgh University Press]
  [UVic catalogue]
  [Goodreads]
Qian Liu – Assistant Professor – University of Calgary

- Marriage Unbound: State Law, Power, and Inequality in Contemporary China by Ke Li

- Weapons of the Weak: Everyday Forms of Peasant Resistance by James C. Scott

Rebecca Johnson – Associate Director, Indigenous Law Research Unit & Director, Graduate Program – UVic Law (click the superscript for comments)

- At the bridge : James Teit and an anthropology of belonging by Wendy Wickwire

- Valley of the Birdtail: an Indian reserve, a white town, and the road to reconciliation by Andrew Stobo Sniderman & Douglas Sanderson (Amo Binashii)

Robert Lapper – David & Dorothy Lam Chair in Law and Public Policy Professor - UVic Law (click the superscript for comments)

- Life against States of Emergency: Revitalizing Treaty Relations from Attawapiskat by Sarah Marie Wiebe

- The myth of normal : trauma, illness, & healing in a toxic culture by Gabor Maté & Daniel Maté

- Slouching Towards Bethlehem by Joan Didion
• The Lincoln Highway by Amor Towles33

Shahira Khair – Data Curation Librarian (click the superscript for comments)

• Saving Time: Discovering a Life Beyond the Clock by Jenny Odell34

• Data cartels : the companies that control and monopolize our information by Sarah Lamdan35

Val Napoleon – Interim Dean – UVic Law, Professor & Law Foundation Chair of Indigenous Justice and Governance

• Against Decolonization: Taking African Agency Seriously by Olúfémi Táíwò

• Part-time Care for all: a care manifesto by Jennifer Nedelsky

Ying Liu – Librarian (click the superscript for comments)

• Homo Deus: a brief history of tomorrow by Yuval Noah Harari36

• 加拿大华侨移民史：社科卷 / 1858-2001. 黎全恩, 丁果, 贾葆蘅著.; Jianada Hua qiao yi min shi : 1858-2001. She ke juan (The History of Chinese Immigration to Canada: 1858-2001) by Lai, Chuenyan David; Ding, Guo; Jia, Baoheng.37
Victoria Chinatown: the Oldest Surviving Chinatown in Canada, 1858-2011 by Lai, Chuenyan David

Why did you choose them? Comments from some of our contributors:

1. Calculating God: Always having been a fan of science fiction, but strolling away from it in recent years, I would like to return to these roots because I feel that in this time of many crises I need some utopia to escape to, but in a constructive manner, if that makes sense. Oh, and I have been given this as a gift by a cherished friend years ago who didn’t get tired to praise it and I – shame on me – never read it. And sometimes go to my bookshelf and pick stuff that has been sitting there forever and give it a shot, if I feel the time is right.

2. The heebie-jeebies at CBGB’s a secret history of Jewish punk: I have been socialized on Punk Rock, and it informs my value system and the way I look at the world to this day. When I started to understand that Punk – just as the world of comics and graphic novels - has been infused by Jewish culture, theology and philosophy, from its early days (e.g. Richard Hell) until today (e.g. Atom and His Package), because many of the actors in those subcultures are having a Jewish background, I found that mind-blowing and it turns out, there is a book about that (of course there is), so I want to educate myself more about that.

3. The Five Laws of Library Science: This book by Indian librarian Ranganathan is a canon title in Library and Information Studies. Library and Information Professionals around the world learn about it, when they are in library school, but talking to my Library colleagues after coming to Canada, we realized that nobody seems to have actually read it. So two colleagues and I decided to give it a shot, read the whole thing and see if it has some timeless insight to offer for how we look at our profession and the work we do. We started a reading group, but now I am the last one who hasn’t read it, so I have to finally do that over the summer.

4. The rise of AI: Implications and applications of artificial intelligence in academic libraries: Just like everyone else, librarians can currently be overwhelmed with the (seemingly) sudden emergence of generative AI, with its fast-paced development, and with figuring out what all that means for higher education and society in general. But part of our job is also to get on top of something so relevant as quickly as possible and help others understand it better – we call that AI literacy, and establishing that is something we made part of our mission. Turns out, some libraries have been active in that realm for a while, and there is already quite a bit of research, as well as some library services and there are even classes offered by libraries, that touch on facets of AI, like machine learning (even here at UVic Libraries). Gaining a better understanding of what is already being offered by libraries around this topic and what groundwork still has to be done is what put this book, edited by the Association of College and Research Libraries, on my summer reading list.

5 On Christian’s music picks: I am always listening to music, even if it is only in my head… I often wake up in the morning, and a tune is already spinning in my head. I am naturally curious and hungry for new sounds and tunes that I find interesting or enchanting, always have been. And since I am hosting a little radio show on a German local radio together with some friends where we mostly just share our latest finds of weird and niche music from a wide variety of genres and backgrounds, I am constantly digging for new musical experiences, finding some real gems where others don’t (some of my friends call me a truffle pig when it comes to music, haha). So, it’s hard for me to point out some specific music that I will listen to. But I will say this: I am always trying to find my “summer record of the year” (doesn’t have to be contemporary or anything), and I have a feeling that this year it will be this one: “V.A. (2022). Dub No Frontiers. Label: On-U Sound.” The blurb by producer Adam Sherwood, who put this compilation of dub songs by female artists from around the world together, states this: “This album is dedicated to the memory of both Ariane 'Ari Up' Forster and Lincoln Valentine 'Style' Scott with whom the project started. 'Dub No Frontiers' is inspired by and features women vocalists we knew from the UK or had met while travelling around the world. Many of the singers said they felt the Dub/Reggae arena was a bit of a male preserve and a little intimidating even, so we decided to invite artistes to perform a song of their choice, all in non-English on our rhythm tracks.”

Why I like it: For the longest time Dub was one of the few genres, that didn’t speak to me, somehow. I tried many times, but most recordings didn’t interest me too much, I found the sound to be kind of static and pre-defined (if that makes sense). But when I saw this record pop up somewhere recently, it’s simplistic, beautiful title and artwork, my truffle pig nose started tingling right away... and the music on this record is some of the most intriguing and beautiful I have heard in a long time. The idea to take this often very specific genre with all its typical instruments, rhythms and sounds, and turn it upside down a bit, with lyrics in Arabic, Hindi, Mandarin... it works so well and makes it so refreshing, at least for my ears. Summer can come in hot, this record will keep me cool and relaxed and happy. And in fact, it made me realize my ignorance and sharpened my senses for the subtleties in dub music that are clearly there (of course they are) - I just hadn't recognized them. In the meantime, I've discovered a number of dub records that I find to be just mind-blowing! All thanks to this amazing project.
6 Parfit: A Philosopher and His Mission to Save Morality: this is a fascinating biography of Derek Parfit that not only explores both his personal biography and his interesting, influential but sometimes controversial views in moral philosophy.

7 Major Barbara: I got some information about this piece by George Bernard Shaw through Anthony Sampson’s The arms bazaar. I’ll read Major Barbara this summer because it contains a relevant and still timely critique of utopic views proposing that radical market economies are means to foster social equality, political participation, and urban development.

8 The Right to Heresy: I love Stefan Zweig’s books. His life and pieces of writing are very important to me, and I never miss the chance to read his works. Since I was never able to buy this book before (it was always too expensive), finding it in our library made me super happy. I’m including it on my list for three reasons: 1) Stefan Zweig wrote it; 2) his books are coming into public domain, which I want to celebrate; 3) this book is about challenging authority and troublemaking. Thus, I’m looking forward to reading it!

9 Chimalpahin’s Conquest: this book is exceptional. It’s a rewriting of a chronicle of the conquest of Mexico that was banned in this continent. Despite many obstacles, the Nahua historian Domingo Francisco de San Antón Muñón Chimalpahin Quauhtlehuanitzin found the original chronicle and rewrote it incorporating Indigenous views. I want to read this book because it demonstrates that the “conquest” was an alliance-based process. I also want to read it because it contributes to my project on travel literature and the production of law. Travel literature? Yes! Although books like this one have not been traditionally seen as pieces of travel literature, emerging voices claim that they are, which contributes to revalorizing this genre.

10 The tiger who came to tea: this book is a classic. I hope that by reading it with my little niece, I’ll support her in developing her love for reading. Hopefully, she’ll love it and become interested in the story behind the production of this book, which I think everyone should be aware of.

11 Valley of the Birdtail: one of the authors of this book, Prof. Douglas Sanderson, was my LLM supervisor. I was fascinated when I knew that he wrote one of the national best-sellers. This book is excellent. It presents a number of stories to engage with a chapter of Canadian history in a vivid way. With a deep sense of empathy, both authors propose ways to have better relationships and achieve reconciliation in Canada. I want to read it with my nephews, the big little boys of the family. Although we won’t read the entire book this summer, I hope that the chapters that we’ll read will help them not only become aware of the social inequalities, but also develop empathy for other people’s situations.

12 The leopard (Il gattopardo): I want to watch this movie for a few reasons (just 7): 1) it’s a 1963 movie; 2) it is based on “Il Gattopardo,” the enthralling book that Giuseppe Tomasi di Lampedusa wrote; 3) Lampedusa’s book has not only been widely acclaimed, but also heavily criticized by communist people; 4) the movie was directed by a great director who was a communist: Luchino Visconti; 5) even though Visconti was a communist, this is one of his best films; 6) the soundtrack was composed by Nino Rota; 7) actors like Burt Lancaster, Claudia Cardinale, and Alain Delon participated in the film.

13 How data happened: a history from the age of reason to the age of algorithms: it is written by a historian AND computer scientist, and it is a readable, fun, interdisciplinary study of what “data” is and how it came to be. If you’re looking to understand the fundamentals of much more complex things like AI, this book is a gentle introduction to the idea of “data” and how it is shaping our world. More importantly, it shows us that data, algorithms, etc., are all based on human thought and action: so if you want to have a say in the future, this is a wonderful book on understanding our “data” past.

15 Law's rule: the nature, value, and viability of the rule of law: I also intend to read Gerald Postema’s new book. To tell the truth, I have seen enough of his argument to expect that he and I will disagree on the rule of law, but I love what he has to say about legal reasoning generally in his many articles. One that was very influential for me at crucial time was “On the Moral Presence of the Past”, which can be downloaded here: https://lawjournal.mcgill.ca/issue/volume-36-issue-4-1990-91/.

16 In the Suicide's Library: A Book Lover's Journey: Bowling is a Canadian author from Alberta. I have never read anything of his before, but this volume seems intriguing for its wide-ranging literary references. It is also beautiful designed by Gaspereau Press, which is what initially prompted me to take it down from a shelf in Munro’s Books a few years ago.

17 Frequently Asked White Questions: I just learned about this book, which aims to answer questions that well-intentionioned white people often ask as they’re learning about race and racism. Its goal is to educate and also to take the burden off of racialized people who often have to answer the same questions over and over, or endure unintended microaggressions while white people educate themselves. It’s a short book and it’s Canadian, which is a plus given that a lot of great books on this topic are primarily about the US context. The authors also run a Youtube series called Safe Space for White Questions, which some folks might find useful.

18 The Taste of Country Cooking: This is a classic cookbook of the American South, written by Edna Lewis, who was a major cook, restaurateur, and food writer of our times. If you’re a foodie, this is an essential book to know or have in your collection. If you’re interested in the history of food, farming, and race in America, it’s fantastic. And if you just like to eat or think about eating good food, Lewis is unbeatable. She organizes her chapters in a totally original way, by shaping it around her memories of growing up farming in Freetown Virginia and calling her sections things like “An Early Spring Dinner After Sheep-Shearing,” and “An Early Summer Dinner of Veal, Scallions, and the First Berries.”

19 Unsettling the University: Confronting the Colonial Foundations of US Higher Education: Navigating Complexity: These two come together because they’re both on my reading list but only one is Canadian. Both are super-interesting high-level looks at the systems that make up universities and post-secondary education, which are very helpful to think about even while we’re constantly working through the day-to-day.

20 The indigenous Paleolithic of the Western Hemisphere - from Dr. Paulette Steeves website: “Written from an Indigenous perspective and informed through Indigenous and Western Knowledge. This story winds through colonization within the Americas and the erasure and denial of a deep Indigenous past in the Americas during the Pleistocene. This book discusses hundreds of Pleistocene archaeology sites in both North and South America that date to earlier than 11,200 years before present, and re-claims over 100,000 years of Indigenous people’s history in the Western Hemisphere.”

21 Underland : a deep time journey - from the publisher’s website: “In Underland, Robert Macfarlane delivers an epic exploration of the Earth’s underworlds as they exist in myth, literature, memory, and the land itself. Traveling through the dizzying expanse of geologic time—from prehistoric art in Norwegian sea caves, to the blue depths of the Greenland ice cap, to a deep-sunk "hiding place" where nuclear waste will be stored for 100,000 years to come—Underland takes us on an extraordinary journey into our relationship with darkness, burial, and what lies beneath the surface of both place and mind.”

22 The Haunting of Hill House: I have heard it is a masterpiece, and my Daughter read it and recommends it to me. But I am a chicken and expect that I will have a tough few days.

23 Best Short Stories of William Somerset Maugham: I heard a story of Maugham’s read by a fine actor a long time ago and I hope to rediscover it. I look forward the mis-en-abyme that fine storytellers can deliver.

24 A Brief History of Equality: it is a popular condensation of his more technical and lengthy works. I look forward to it.
25 Sand talk: How Indigenous thinking can save the world: from my understanding, this is a paradigm-shifting book rich with ideas and inspiration on how to change the way we see the world.

26 How data happened: A history from the age of reason to the age of algorithms: this book sheds light on the history of statistics and data, offering valuable insights into who owns it and who controls it.

27 Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow: I take book recommendations from good friends to heart, and although I know absolutely nothing about this title, I am so excited to read it!

28 At the Bridge: this is a book I would recommend to every person living in BC. Seriously. This should be on the ‘must read’ list for all Canadians. A group of us (faculty and grad students) wrote a book review of it together, so I also like that the book can generate conversation from so many directions.

29 Valley of the Birdtail: an Indian reserve, a white town, and the road to reconciliation: I initially read this one as a favour to a friend when the authors were coming to UVic on a book tour. It turned out that I was the one who was GIVEN a favour. This book is another masterful piece of history, and of storytelling, that follows two communities (one Indigenous, one Ukrainian immigrant) on opposite sides of a valley. It feels almost like a page turner: though it is meticulously documented, the people on each side of the valley come alive in ways that draw the reader in to a complicated and nuanced tapestry, and then gradually move you towards thinking in very concrete terms about actual policy change that could move us in the direction of better relations. I have never read such a compelling policy document. This one is totally worth your time.

30 Life against states of emergency: revitalizing treaty relations from Attawapiskat: it is a recently published work by my colleague at the UVic School of Public Administration, Dr. Sarah Marie Wiebe. I am on a panel that will be discussing treaty issues at the launch of this book in Victoria on June 16.

31 The myth of normal – trauma, illness and healing in a toxic culture: this is only partly “recreational” as I have read most of Dr. Mate’s earlier work and am intrigued by this one. As well, as a component of my Access to Justice courses in both the Faculty of Law and the School of Public Administration, we examine, and critically examine trauma and trauma informed practice, and I thought that this book would help.

32 Slouching Towards Bethlehem: Joan Didion died last year, and in reading her memorials I realized that she speaks to and about a generation that I was a part of in my early life – I have started this book and am intrigued.
33. The Lincoln Highway: because I enjoyed Amor Towles’ earlier work – A Gentleman in Moscow – and think I might enjoy this.

34. Saving Time: I’m looking forward to reading Jenny Odell’s new book about time and how it structures our society, and the chance to think about alternative ways to experience time based not on the 9-5 but, for example, on ecological scales. I read her last book “How to Do Nothing” about disconnecting from the attention economy, which was super enjoyable so I expect this to be a great follow up!

35. Data Cartels: I recently read an interview the author gave about her book. When talking about the monetization of personal data we usually focus on the big tech firms. This book shines a spotlight on giant academic publishers like Elsevier and Thomson Reuters doing the same with their data holdings of academic publications, legal and business information, and our own personal information for big profit.

36. Homo Deus: a history of tomorrow: I recently reread the book Homo Deus. I found that the chapter on “Data Religions” very insightful especially for the recent AI discussions. A lot of things seem worth thinking when we seem step in a new cross-road and it is helpful to think and examine the similar moments in the past.

37. The History of Chinese Immigration to Canada: 1858-2001: If you have members with Chinese background, the book will be a great casual reading. The book was written by two community researchers and an emeritus UVic faculty, including stories, evidences, and interviews related to legal and political struggles of Chinese Canadians in Canada.

38. Victoria Chinatown : the Oldest Surviving Chinatown in Canada, 1858-2011: if any English-speaker is interested in the history of Chines immigration to Canada, this book will be a good start.