Administrative History

The McPherson Library has collected military maps since at least the early 1960s. Dr. R. H. Roy, the first incumbent of the Chair of Military History, solicited maps from veterans of the two world wars by placing letters to the editor in local newspapers and then turned the resulting donations over to the University Archives. Military map holdings have been augmented from time to time by other donations and have been complimented by the map component of records such as those of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's). A list of donors is included at the back of the inventory.

Scope and Content

The collection consists primarily of published map series of Europe during World War I and World War II, and several of Asia, Africa, Australia and North America. Some aerial photographs are included.

Introduction

Military maps have been collected by the McPherson Library since at least the early 1960s. Dr. R.H. Roy, the first incumbent of the Chair of Military History, solicited maps from veterans of the two world wars by placing letters to the editor in local newspapers and then turned the resulting donations over to the University Archives. Military map holdings have been augmented from time to time by other donations and have been complimented by the map component of records such as those of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

Library staff have been handicapped in accessing the collection by the absence of finding aids (lists, indexes, etc.), although the bulk of the collection has been kept in reasonable order. As long ago as 1961 John O. Dell, then a very junior staff member, was assigned the task of identifying and organizing the maps. Some of the maps in this inventory bear his annotations, and some of the index maps included here were originally drawn by him.

This inventory brings together descriptions of the holdings of the Military Maps Collection (designated MM and Rolled Maps) and the maps which formed part of the war diaries of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Accession 76-25). These holdings total 1550 maps and 378 aerial photographs.

The series and item descriptions of MM1-MM199 are presented in the order the maps are stored in map cabinets. This order reflects the organization imposed on the majority of maps over a period of many years. In the course of this project several hundred uncontrolled sheets were either interfiled with existing series to which they belonged or were added to the end of the collection.

For the most part the series described here are published map series. In a few instances miscellaneous maps of areas of the Western Front in World War I published by various units of the British Army were grouped by scale and described as series (e.g. MM34, MM36). The only true archival series described here is that of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Accession 76-25). The majority of the single items are commercially published maps of the different theatres of the First and Second World Wars.

A detailed holdings list follows each series description to help users located specific items. These are arranged by the internal map numbering system employed by the creators. In a few instances index maps to these numbering schemes have been reproduced here. This inventory would clearly be improved by the acquisition and reproduction of more index maps from large map repositories.

Since accessions of maps from several different donors have been interfiled over the years, some of the values inherent in original order and in the integrity of the fonds have been lost. From the documentation of many of these donations it has, however, been possible establish the identities of most of the original donors, and their names are noted in the descriptions of series or items.

The descriptions in this inventory are based on the Anglo-American Cataloguing Rules, Second Edition, 1988 Revision (AACR2R), with a few simplifications (e.g. dashes between fields have been dropped; statements of responsibility have been recorded as notes where they were thought necessary; the holdings notes give item descriptions in a somewhat less rigorous fashion than prescribed for a multilevel description). Name headings in the series and item descriptions and in Index B have been constructed according to AACR2R, but index entries for series have been adjusted to make them collocate better.

The inventory has been supplemented by three indexes: Place names and subjects; creators, publishers and series; and donors.

The descriptions, including the holdings notes, were first entered into Pro-Cite, a bibliographical database program. They were then output to WordPerfect 5.1 and edited for format and style. The indexes were prepared on MACREX 5.01, a program for back-of-the-book indexes. They were then transferred to WordPerfect and edited.

Title

Military Maps collection.

Dates

Extent

4 maps.

Administrative History

Military maps have been collected by the McPherson Library since at least the early 1960s. Dr. R.H. Roy, the first incumbent of the Chair of Military History, solicited maps from veterans of the two world wars by placing letters to the editor in local newspapers and then turned the resulting donations over to the University Archives. Military map holdings have been augmented from time to time by other donations and have been complimented by the map component of records such as those of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's). A list of donors is included at the back of the inventory. The University of Victoria Libraries Special Collections has a mandate to acquire military maps.
