About the University of Victoria
The University of Victoria ranks consistently in the top tier of Canada’s research-intensive universities. Vital impact drives the UVic sense of purpose. As an internationally renowned teaching and research hub, we tackle essential issues that matter to people, places, and the planet. Our commitment to research-inspired dynamic learning and vital impact make this Canada’s most extraordinary environment for discovery and innovation.

Description of Position
Situated at the University of Victoria Libraries, on the traditional territory of the Lekwungen peoples, and the Songhees, Esquimalt and WSÁNEĆ peoples whose historical relationships with the land continue to this day, the Indigenous Law and Indigenous Outreach Librarian (ILIOL) supports the JID/JD program at the Faculty of Law, and takes a leadership role in advocating for and building general library support for Aboriginal/Indigenous students, faculty, librarians, university partners, external partners, and the Aboriginal/Indigenous community-at-large. The ILIOL reports to the Director, Law Library and works closely and collaboratively with librarians and staff in the law library; members of the Faculty of Law; and colleagues across the University of Victoria Libraries.

Summary of Responsibilities
The ILIOL is responsible for learning and research assistance and liaison services for the students and faculty of the Faculty of Law, particularly those in the JID/JD program of the Faculty of Law, other patrons of the Law Library, and the students and faculty of other UVic Faculties and Departments, as appropriate. Responsibilities include evaluation of Indigenous resources for the law library collection; creation of learning resources; and research, instruction, and reference services in the Law Library, primarily, but not exclusively, for the JID/JD program. Additional responsibilities include working with the Associate University Librarian – Reconciliation and other library colleagues to facilitate an increase of Indigenous cultural acumen within the Libraries to assist with initiatives for truth and reconciliation and the Indigenization of library spaces & services in support of library & university strategic priorities & Indigenous plans.

Duties
• Helps build and develop the Indigenous laws collection, including specialized physical, digital, and multimedia materials.
• Collaborates with colleagues to deliver in-depth, high-quality service in satisfaction of the research and learning needs of law students and faculty.
• Prepares and maintains learning resources to support learning needs within the JID/JD program, the law school community, and curricular programming of other Faculties and Departments as assigned.
• Delivers instruction for the Faculty of Law, particularly in legal research strategies, methods, and resources in legal research and writing courses and in a variety of law subject areas including areas specific to the JID/JD program.
• Fosters close working relationships in partnership with the AUL – Reconciliation and other colleagues with First Peoples House, Old Ones/Elders and Knowledge Keepers, Office of Indigenous Academic and Community Engagement, Indigenous Law Students Association, Native Students’ Union, Indigenous Student Support Centre, local Indigenous communities, Victoria Native Friendship Centre, etc.

- Participates in assessment activities, communications initiatives, and committee and project work as required.
- Contributes to the ongoing development and works in furtherance of the strategic directions of UVic Libraries, and those of the Faculty of Law, as applicable.

Qualifications

- Master’s degree from an accredited school of library science, or a master’s or higher degree in another discipline with expertise and excellence in professional practice relevant to the position if the candidate agrees to complete a MLS from an accredited school of library science before the end of the probationary period (or the equivalent combination of education and experience in archival science in the case of an Archivist). Alternatively, in an exceptional case, relevant combination and education may be considered for candidates demonstrating strong community relationships especially as related to the foundations of Indigenous laws and practices. Please note, in this circumstance during the first years of employment, it will be necessary to obtain an MLS degree from an accredited school of library science. UVic Libraries is willing to explore providing assistance to the successful candidate in this circumstance.
- A JD or equivalent degree preferred.
- Knowledge about Canadian legal resources and instruction in legal research methods and law library use.
- Demonstrated knowledge about Indigenous legal resources and Indigenous research methodologies.
- Demonstrated experience working effectively with Indigenous students, clients, and communities.
- Background in Indigenous studies and familiarity with one or more Indigenous languages is preferred.
- Experience in a Canadian academic law library or law practice environment and experience with foreign and international legal resources would be advantageous.
- A commitment to professional ethics and continuous learning and development, and ability to work collegially and collaboratively in a rapidly changing environment.

The position is open to all candidates, though Indigenous individuals will be preferred. Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. A comprehensive benefits package is provided.
