JOB TITLE: ENGL2 – Indigenous Summer Camp Design

DEPARTMENT NAME: ENGLISH

CONTACT NAME: Stephen Ross

JOB DESCRIPTION:
The SCAMPS Humanities summer camps programme seeks a qualified student to help design and plan summer camps with a focus on Humanities content. These camps furnish important alternatives to the Vikes and Science Venture camps already on campus. The successful applicant will help us generate exciting camp ideas, and design curriculum for delivery in both French and English. We are especially keen to develop and implement a camp focused on Indigenous ways of knowing and local knowledge. The job includes researching and planning age-appropriate activities for children aged 5-12, booking facilities, liaising with other organizers, consulting with contacts at Science Venture and other partners, scouting locations and making agreements with partners such as UVic Libraries, and scheduling events with sufficient time for breaks, nutrition, and play. You will also receive training in safety and security, and become familiar with industry standards for first-aid, emergency preparedness, and quality of care. Our primary focus is on Indigenous content and approaches.

QUALIFICATIONS:
We seek someone who has excellent written and oral communication skills, who pays close attention to detail, and who is exceptionally organized. The ability to work quickly and independently is a must, as is the ability to consult freely when special cases arise. A creative thinker who can imagine and then execute solutions to problems is highly desired. Preference will be given to current students in the Faculty of Humanities, and to Indigenous applicants in particular.
