JOB POSTING

JOB TITLE: PSYC7 - Undergraduate Research Assistant

DEPARTMENT NAME: Psychology

CONTACT NAME: Andrea Piccinin

JOB DESCRIPTION:

The iLifespan Lab, under the supervision of Dr. Piccinin, has several openings for undergraduate research assistants. These positions involve (i) working on literature reviews, systematic reviews, meta-analyses, and original empirical research reports focused on cognitive functioning and several chronic health conditions and biomarkers, and (ii) assisting with data analysis for a study examining smell using cortical imaging (fNIRS). Tasks include locating relevant articles, extracting information from articles using a standardized coding guide, as well as basic data analysis and data entry. Additional opportunities may be available depending on the experiences and interests of the applicant.

Training sessions will be organized regularly, and detailed instruction guides will be provided for every new task. The majority of tasks can be completed remotely (i.e., online). This position provides the opportunity to learn from our team of researchers on many diverse topics, as well as to practice and improve fundamental research skills.

QUALIFICATIONS:

We are looking for professional, motivated and highly organized students who are interested in longitudinal lifespan research. Undergraduate students who are planning to pursue a graduate degree or have previous lab experience are preferred. Previous experience with literature reviews, library database searches, as well as proficiency with Excel, Word, Dropbox, and Google Docs, are desirable characteristics, though we will provide instruction for all necessary tasks.
