

1. About me

2. Interning in India

3. Research project

4. Learning & sharing

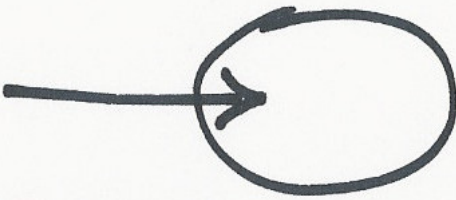

The world looks different from here.

Where the magic happens

Your comfort zone

Knowledge. Voice. Democracy.

PRIA

PRIA (Society for Participatory Research In Asia),
India

@pria.india

Home

Posts

Photos

YouTube

Twitter

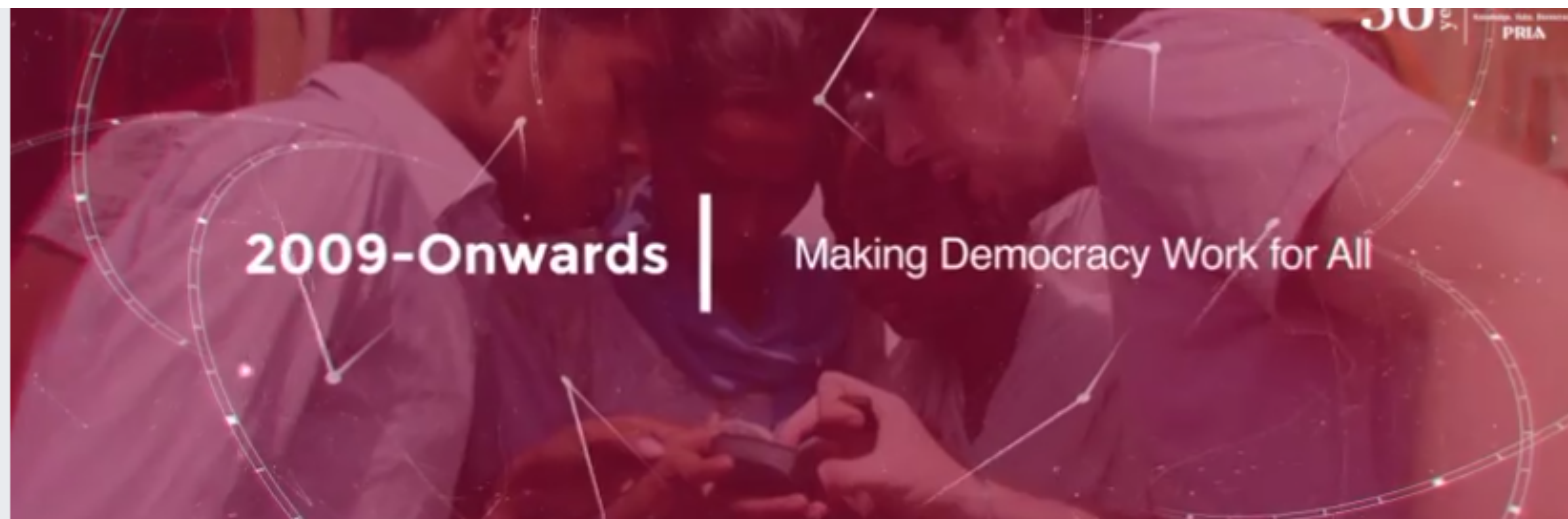

About

Countdown

Countdown Clock

Community

Videos

Like

Share

Send Message

Posts

PRIA (Society for Participatory Research In Asia), India

February 12 at 1:08am · 🌐

There has been, and continues to be, an inescapable link between caste and occupation for India's #sanitation workers. This ageless association means isolation, invisibility and economic depression for them.

Why does the middle class and #government remain apathetic to the lives and issues of those who actually keep #India clean -- our sanitation workers.

Nonprofit Organization in New Delhi

Community

See All

4,446 people like this

4,440 people follow this

About

See All

42, Tughlakabad Institutional Area (6,976.95)

First time

Conducting original research

Living in a new family

Human-based research

Working with youth

Working on gender issues

Quantitative or qualitative research

Living and/or working in a different country

In India

Leaving Canada for 6+ months

Working in social or development sector

"How do I interact with kids?" – Will, pre-internship

- Gender
- Skin color or race
- Language
- Religion
- Class
- Caste (or background)
- Geography
- History (colonialism)
- Etc. (and intersections of these)

Learning
PRIA's approach to research

A group of young people, including men and women, are sitting on a red and black striped mat in a rural setting. They are engaged in a discussion, with some looking at each other and others looking towards the camera. The background shows a simple building with a blue door and a window with a metal grille. The text "The Livelihoods Aspirations of Youth in Rural Haryana" is overlaid on the image in a large, bold, black serif font.

The Livelihoods Aspirations of Youth in Rural Haryana

livemint

e » Politics
st Published: Thu, Jul 09 2015. 09 07 AM IST

Narendra Modi wants to train 400 million people to avert demographic risk

Modi set up a new skills and entrepreneurship ministry and aims to train 400 million workers by 2022

✉ Bibhudatta Pradhan

Skill India Initiative: Inter

MODI'S SKILL INDIA

BW BUSINESSWORLD

HOME

COLUMNS ▾

COMMUNITIES

EVENTS

BW TV ▾

SUBSCRIBE TO PRINT

Business News

Sustainability

StartUp-&-Entrepreneur

Hospitality-Industry

Smartcities

'Providing Skills To 400 Million Indians By 2022 A Challenge'

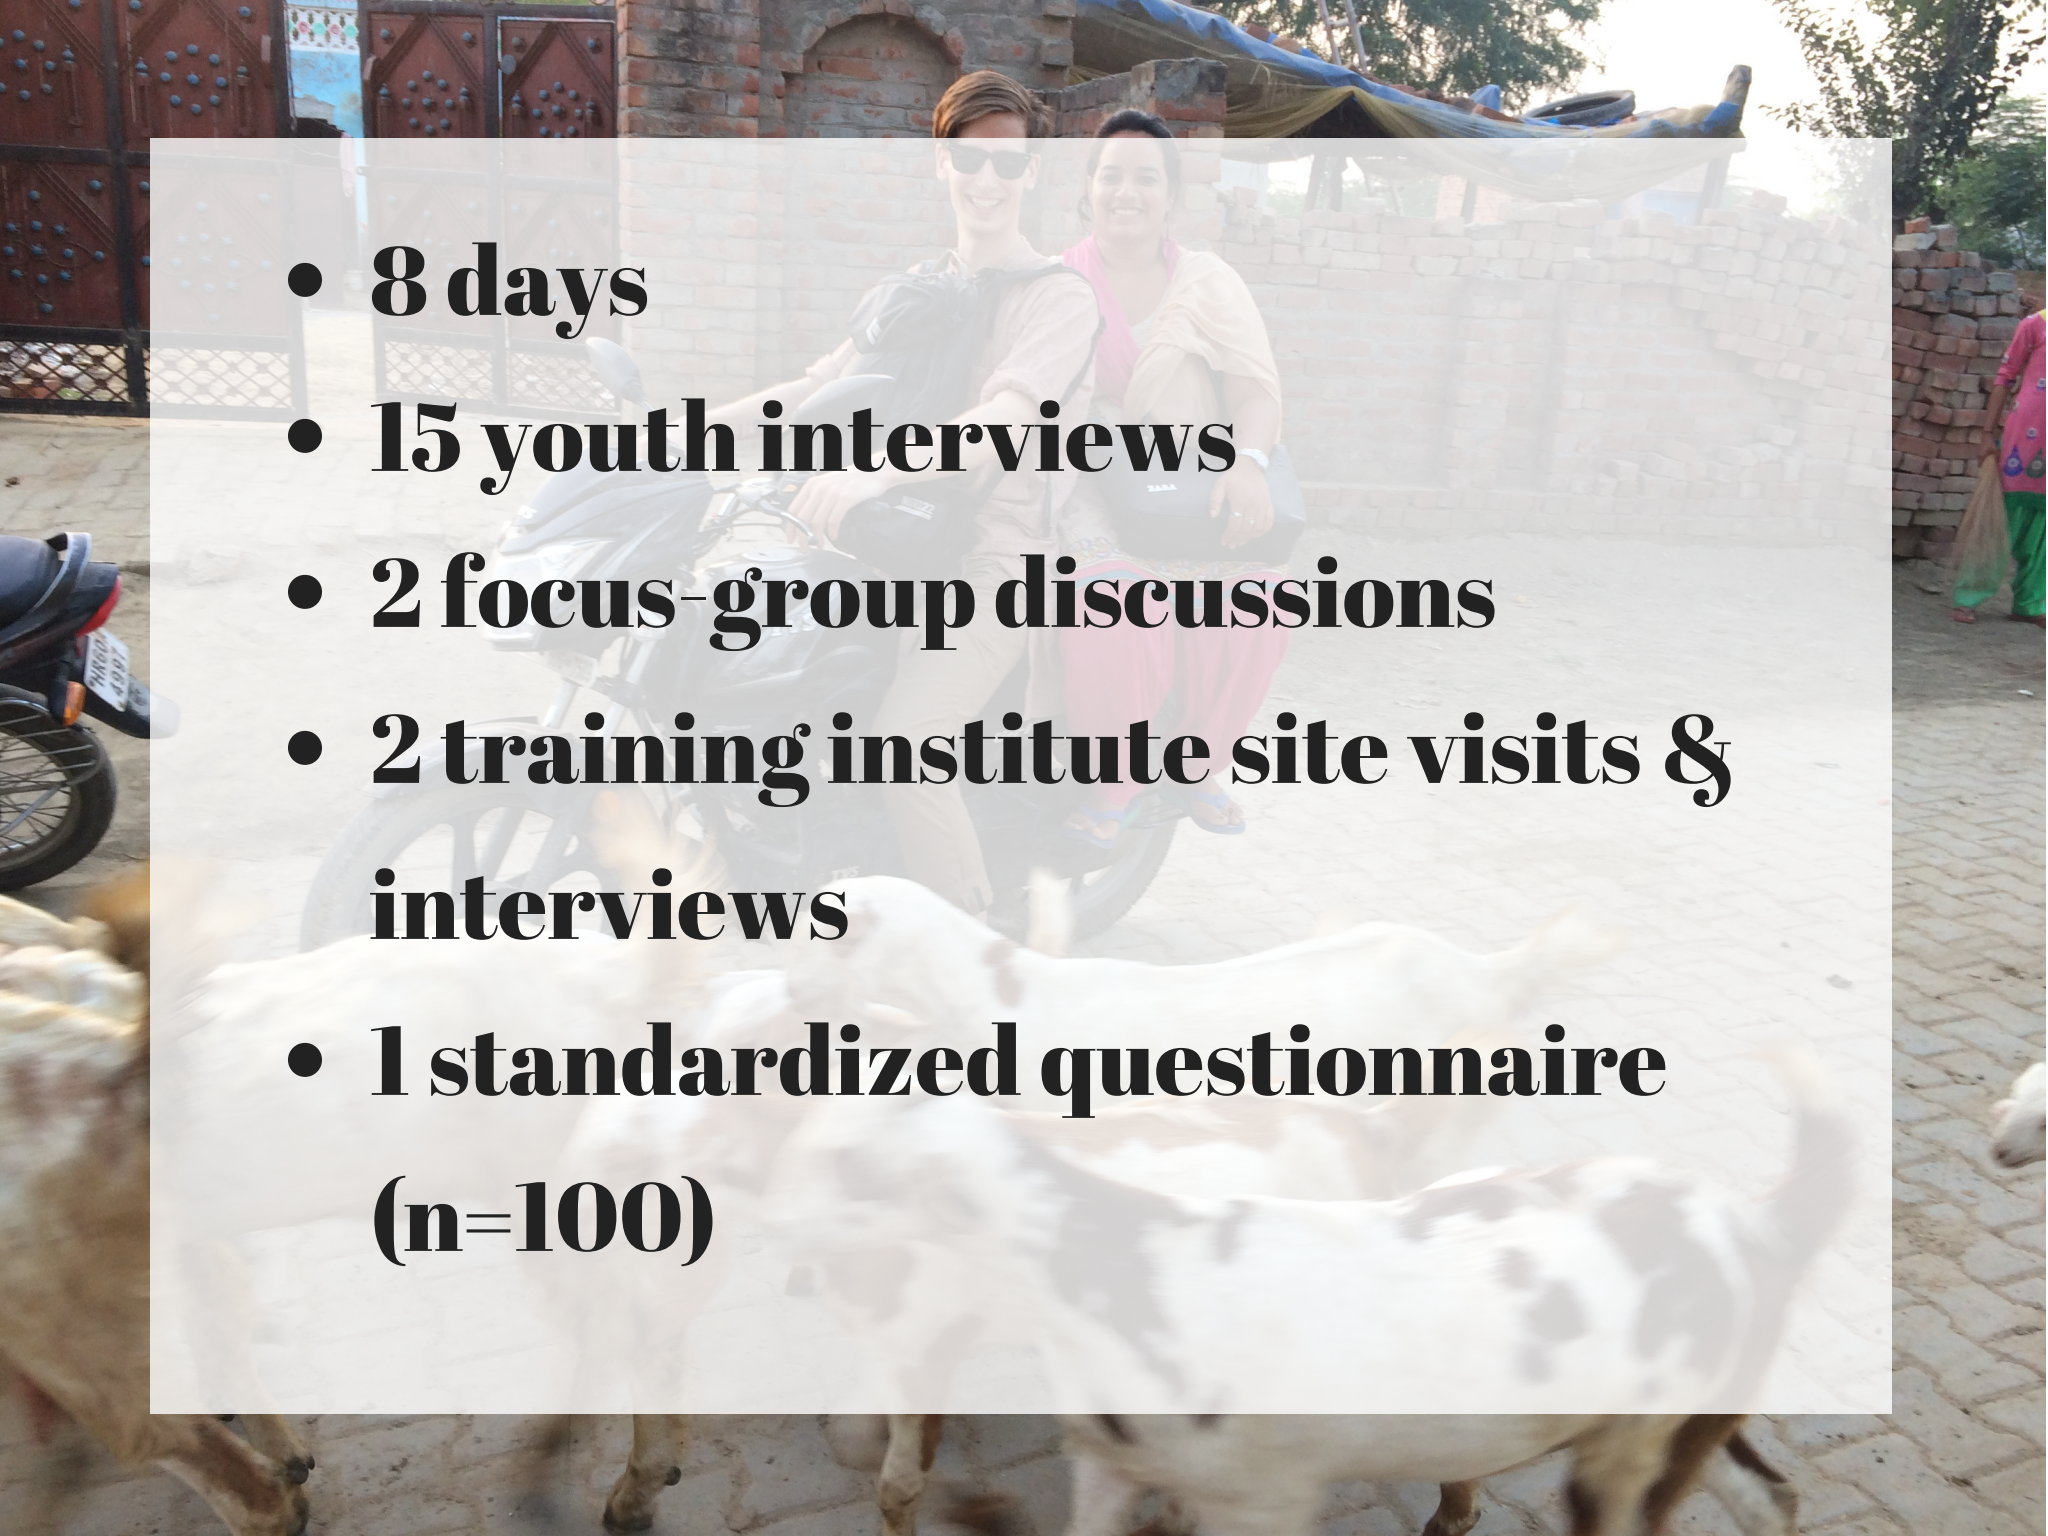

Both public and private sectors will have to collaborate and work together in creating aspiration and respect for skills among youth, says Jayan Krishna, CEO of National Skill Development Corporation

What are the aspirations of the youth?

What are the opportunities available to them?

What obstructs them from achieving these aspirations, or seizing these opportunities?

-
- A photograph of a man and a woman sitting on a black motorcycle in a rural setting. The man is wearing sunglasses and a light-colored shirt, and the woman is wearing a pink and yellow sari. They are both smiling. In the foreground, there are several white cows. The background shows a brick wall and a wooden gate. A semi-transparent white box is overlaid on the image, containing a list of activities.
- 8 days
 - 15 youth interviews
 - 2 focus-group discussions
 - 2 training institute site visits & interviews
 - 1 standardized questionnaire (n=100)

But how WAS it?

What does it take for people to thrive in their work?

All new jobs come with challenges...

What are the challenges of working in a different culture, or organizational culture?

What are the needs of employees from different backgrounds?

What are important things across all cultures (organizationally)?

Where is the power located/where are decisions made?

Who do I go to for help? (competence, trust, accessibility)

Is information being shared with me?

Am I getting enough performance feedback?

Passing the torch

Critical Reflection Workbook CAPI Interns 2018

Photo credit: WES Howling, 2017

Centre for Asia-Pacific Initiatives (February 2018)

University of Victoria
Centre for Asia-Pacific Initiatives

The Spiral Model of Learning (action/reflection)

Overview

Combining critical reflection with real-life experiences is an integral part of international experiential learning. During your placement as an intern overseas, you need to engage and grapple with the complexities of your experience by analyzing and interpreting them in a critically reflective way. The more seriously you take your own critical reflections, the more deeply you will learn from this experience.

The CAPI Internship program actively promotes critical reflection before, during, and after your placement. This workbook provides material, questions, and space to help you critically reflect on yourself, the broader world and forces you are a part of, and your experience as an intern as a whole.

As part of your program requirements, you are required to submit four critical reflections to Robyn. You are encouraged to do these in a form that you feel comfortable with: a written document, a podcast of yourself reflecting, a recorded conversation of critical reflections with a fellow intern, or any other creative way to critically engage with yourself and your experience. You are also encouraged to approach these reflections as 'journal' styles of reflection rather than academic writing. In addition, some of these topics and reflections could possibly form the basis of, or contribute to, some of your blog entries. There are no right or wrong answers; you are required to engage deeply, critically, and thoughtfully. This workbook is for you to deepen your own experience as a CAPI intern.

Below there are outlined minimum requirements for your critical reflections. These minimums are to encourage you to take the time and energy needed to reflect critically. For the submitted critical reflections, submit by email to Robyn. Discuss with Robyn if there is another way you would like to submit them.

Critical Reflection Requirements:

- Minimum 300 words
- Podcast recording estimated 5-10 minutes
- Or another medium (be creative!) that you will discuss with Robyn

Centre for Asia-Pacific Initiatives (February 2018)

University of Victoria
Centre for Asia-Pacific Initiatives

Timeline and Materials for Critical Reflections

For each of your critical reflections there are articles, book chapters, videos, and topics listed that you may find relevant to the corresponding stage of your internship. During pre-departure orientation, you discussed and worked through some of these articles, book chapters, and videos as a group. This same

Framework for Critical Reflection

Four key factors are important for critical reflecting on your intern experience:

- 1) Continuity — you are encouraged to critically reflect before, during, and after your experience.
- 2) Connection — you are encouraged to work to connect your own experiences to the material that in this handbook/pre-departure, your own academic learning, work experiences, and other dimensions of your life.
- 3) Challenge — critical reflection should challenge you to examine your intern experience, the world around you, and yourself, in new and critical ways.
- 4) Contextualization — you are encouraged to critically reflect on contextual factors at all times. This could include historical factors, socio-economic factors, race, gender, religion, intra/international geography, values/habits, and many more. You are encouraged to think of the personal (in what you are experiencing, feeling, seeing, thinking etc.) as connected to the political (what are the structures and systems that are intersecting here to contribute to your experiences?).

To facilitate your critical reflection, you are encouraged to use the spiral model on the next page as a way to guide your thinking. The first three steps of the model are most relevant for your reflections. The model begins in the centre by first "placing yourself", next asking yourself "What is happening?", then "reflecting on 'why is this happening?'", and then moves onto idea generation for strategies to move forward, and then taking action by implementing your strategy. Also, recognize that critical reflection is an iterative process — action leads to new knowledge and experiences that may require additional reflection. Action and reflection occurring simultaneously and iteratively is the process through which critical consciousness is developed.

Centre for Asia-Pacific Initiatives (February 2018)

University of Victoria
Centre for Asia-Pacific Initiatives

Critical reflection 1:

- Robyn, Here's "The best stats you've ever seen"
- What statistics have you heard or seen attached to your new host country and its inhabitants?
 - How can I/are talk help you think through the statistics and preconceived ideas often attached to your host country and its inhabitants?

Dhanyavad!
(thank you)