

Like We Don't Exist

Documentary Film Screening

Like We Don't Exist

For the last seven decades, the Burmese military government has waged the world's longest ongoing civil war against their own ethnic minorities. The Karenni, an ethnic group who have faced harsh opposition, survive as refugees along the Thai-Burma border. Hundreds of thousands of Karenni are now faced with an impossible choice: to live as refugees without rights or citizenship, or to attempt to return to their war-torn homeland.

runtime: 34 mins, plus an intro and post-screening discussion

Produced by Ansley Sawyer
Co-directed by Ansley Sawyer and Corey Embring
Edited by Corey Embring

This event has been brought to CAPI by Renée Mulligan, Board member with Lawyers' Rights Watch Canada and Legal Counsel with the Policy and Legislation Division of the BC Attorney General

A free, public event hosted by

University of Victoria
Centre for Asia-Pacific
Initiatives

27 Sept 2018
Fraser (FRA) Building
Room 159
UVic
4pm
capi.uvic.ca