

University of Victoria

The Heart Coffer: Spiritual Explorations through Puppetry

Timothy Gosley

Thursday, March 26

5:00-6:00 p.m.

David Turpin Building, Room A110

Puppetry has a long history that extends across cultures. From the shadows cast upon Neanderthal caves to modern Muppet TV, humans have sought to express themselves through this art form. Through reflection and performance, Tim Gosley introduces his latest (and ongoing) project, “The Heart Coffer.” How are we to understand “the heart,” this widely recognized metaphor for the seat of human intuition, emotion, spirituality and profound inter-connection? And how might puppetry inform the topic? Join us for a visually rich exploration of issues central to human experience.

Tim Gosley is a Gemini award winning puppeteer who has worked with the Muppets. Utilizing different techniques, he has created projects revolving around the works of P.K. Page, Robin Skelton, Pat Martin Bates, Michael McClure, Emily Carr and Goethe.

<https://www.uvic.ca/research/centres/csrs/>