Café Historique: The Extraordinary Life and Legacy of Indigenous Rights Activist James Teit
November 5th, 2019 @ 6:00 pm
Hermann’s Jazz Club

Every once in a while, an important historical figure makes an appearance, makes a difference and then disappears. James Teit (1864-1922) spent four decades helping British Columbia’s Indigenous peoples challenge the settler-colonial assault on their lives and lands. Yet his story is little-known. Join Dr Wendy Wickwire for a long-overdue corrective aimed at according Teit the status he deserves: as one of the leading political anthropologists of the 20th century.

Distinguished Lecture: An Isolated Stop on the Road of Power
November 27th, 2019 @ 7:00 pm
Royal BC Museum
Presented in partnership with the University of Victoria Anthropology Department

In 2018, Dr. Marcello Canuto, director of the Middle American Research Institute at Tulane University and co-director of the La Corona Regional Archaeological Project, led a team of archaeologists to new discoveries at the Maya site of La Corona, located in Petén, Guatemala. A nearly 1,500-year-old carved altar, the oldest found to date at the site, presents new evidence for how a powerful kingdom known as the Kaanul dynasty began. See this significant monument currently on display in Maya: The Great Jaguar Rises exhibition. Includes access to the Maya exhibition

Tickets are more details here.
