ANTH 455
ADVANCED TOPICS IN THE ANTHROPOLOGY OF HIV/AIDS

INSTRUCTOR: Dr. Eric Roth

COURSE DESCRIPTION AND OBJECTIVES

This is a seminar on selected topics in recent developments in the social epidemiology of HIV/AIDS. Student will choose a topic to develop throughout the course, write a research proposal to explore it, and present this to the class.

SKILLS DEVELOPMENT

Students will experience a seminar format, where they are asked to join in and even lead class discussion, rather than receiving predetermined lectures. As such student skill development will include public speaking, making an academic presentation, and constructing a mock research proposal.
