Cuba Ethnographic Field School 2018: Contrapunteo

University of Victoria
CASCA-CUBA, Casa Dranguet
and the Universidad de Oriente in Santiago de Cuba

Field school: May 13 to June 3, 2018
Pre-field-school: March 3-4 and 10-11

DESCRIPTION

The theme of the 2018 Ethnographic Field School in Cuba is “Contrapunteo” in honour of Don Fernando Ortiz, Cuban ethnographer. “Contrapunteo” is also the theme of the Canadian Anthropology Society annual meeting that will take place in Santiago de Cuba from May 16-20, 2018 (CASCA-CUBA; www.cascacuba.com). The Society for Applied Anthropology (SFAA) is a junior sponsor of the event. This is the first time ever for the annual general meeting to be held outside of Canada, and it is the first time ever for the general meeting to be held in Cuba.

Students registered to the 2018 Ethnographic field school in Cuba will participate in CASCA-CUBA's sessions, exhibits, guest talks and other activities. Part of the field school’s expectations is that students will connect with Cuban and non-Cuban scholars who will be participating in this historical conference. Students will get to know the work of a selection of Cuban scholars present at the event by interviewing and creating media projects (short films and/or podcasts). The field school is organized in collaboration with Casa Dranguet, a cultural centre located in the city centre of Santiago de Cuba. Students will visit and participate in two of Casa Dranguet’s community-engaged projects developed by: La Fraternidad Eco-archaeological site and the Caminos del Café’s cooperative.

This field school is addressed to students who are interested in; acquiring in-depth knowledge of a local cultural milieu, engaging with Anthropology and Cuban Studies, contributing to diverse local projects, and in meeting Cubans who contribute to the cultural and artistic life of Eastern Cuba.

Cuba is changing extremely fast; now is the time to explore the only socialist country in the Americas! You will be impressed by Cuba’s rhythms, beliefs and cultural patterns, not to mention its extremely rich historical and social background. In taking you off the beaten track, this summer school will allow you to discover some of the unique contemporary cultural practices and social dynamics that characterize the biggest island in the Caribbean.

The 2018 field school is based in Eastern Cuba and combines two courses: Contemporary Cuban Culture (ANTH 393) and Methods in Ethnography (ANTH 395). The ‘Contemporary Cuban Culture’ course will encourage students to work closely with a selection of Cuban scholars participating to CASCA-CUBA. More specifically, in teams, and with the help of the assistant instructor Dr. Eleonora Diamanti, you will produce an audio-visual text (short film and/or podcast) about a topic related to the work of a Cuban scholar participating at CASCA-Cuba. As part of ANTH 395, you will conduct small-scale ethnographic exercises (observation, participant observation and interview) that will provide a concrete experience in conducting ethnographic fieldwork in a different cultural and linguistic context.

COURSE CREDITS

Students will receive a total of 3 credits for ANTH 393 and ANTH 395 combined. Non-UVic students are responsible for arranging the transfer of credits to their home institutions where applicable. Students will attend lectures by Dr. Alexandrine Boudreault-Fournier (UVic), Dr. José Miyares (Casa del Caribe), and Dr. Eleonora Diamanti (UVic) as well as workshops led by different artists and cultural and religious figures living in Eastern Cuba. Courses will take place at the Casa Dranguet in Santiago de Cuba.

A detailed course syllabi will be available for download from our website in March 2018.

ACCOMODATIONS AND AMENITIES

We will stay with Cuban host families who are legally registered as Casa Particular (Bed & Breakfasts). Students will stay two per room and will share a private bathroom. They will also eat breakfast and some dinners with their host families. Staying with families will allow the students to interact with Cubans and get a sense of their everyday life. All the houses will be located in the same neighbourhood.

FOOD

Cuban food is delicious and we will have the opportunity to eat different types of meals. Vegetarian dishes should be available most of the time. In some cases, full vegetarian meals may not be available. However, students will have other options such as rice, eggs, vegetables and fruit. Students will eat with their host families, in Cuban restaurants (paladares) and in hotel cafeterias.

FIELD TRIPS

The core of the summer school will take place in Santiago de Cuba during the month of May and June. We will spend one day in Guantánamo and three days in the beautiful city of Baracoa. Three days will be spent in the remote area of La Fraternidad located outside of Santiago de Cuba. Field trips are organized almost every 2 days. For instance, as part of ANTH 393, we will learn Afro-Cuban dances with a dance group from Guantánamo and we will meet religious priests of the Santería religion in a small village called Palma.
Soriano. We will also visit various sites associated with the Slave Route, such as the Cimarrón monument in El Cobre (UNESCO sites). In addition, we will spend time with visual artists, musicians and traditional figures involved in contemporary Cuban culture. We will have the opportunity to discuss with them and learn from their experiences.

LANGUAGE

Alexandrine and/or Eleonora will translate meetings and workshops. However, students will have to cope with linguistic constraints outside of the course schedule. Very few Cubans speak English and we strongly encourage students to take Spanish courses before their departure.

COST

The field school fee is CAD $2,300 and is IN ADDITION TO the cost of mandatory summer registration/tuition in ANTH 393 and 395 courses (approximately $1,000 for Canadian students; international students should consult the Office of the Registrar’s website for registration information http://registrar.uvic.ca/safa/annual-costs.html). International airplane fares from Victoria to Cuba are approximately $1,200 CAD (return) though subject to change. The approximate total cost for the field school for Canadian students is $4,500. This does not include personal expenses while in Cuba (souvenirs, free time, etc.) and private health/travel insurance. The field school fee ($2,300) includes CASCA conference participation and membership, accommodations, workshops and fieldtrips, land transportation within Cuba, and food for the duration of the field school.

ABOUT THE INSTRUCTORS

Dr. Alexandrine Boudreault-Fournier has conducted ethnographic fieldwork in Cuba since the year 2000. She speaks Spanish fluently and knows the local culture very well. She has already organized and coordinated two ethnographic field schools in Cuba.

offered by the Department of Anthropology at UVic (2014 and 2016), which were great successes. She looks forward to embarking on her third experience with another group of motivated students!

Dr. Eleonora Diamanti is an Assistant Professor at UVic (2017). Her research interests relate to urban life, arts, creativity, media and the night. She participated to the second ethnographic field school, speaks fluently Spanish, and has an in-depth knowledge of local conditions. In Cuba, Dr. José Miyares from the Casa del Caribe, will share his wide-ranging knowledge and passion for Cuban culture and history.

TESTIMONIALS FROM PARTICIPANTS OF THE FIELD SCHOOLS

“I highly recommend the field school for any of those who seek to get a hands on experience of what the actual lives of Cubans entail; as well as a deeper and better understanding of Cuban culture as a whole.”

“I was so fortunate to be able to attend this once in a life opportunity. It was an amazing life changing experience.”

“This field school was unbelievable! I still look back and wonder if it really happened 😊 Every day was such a unique adventure, as Cuba filled my senses to the brim.”
