COURSE SYLLABUS
Regional Studies: Governance of Natural Resources in Africa

Lecture Times: Mondays and Thursdays, 15:30 – 16:50 in Clearihue Building C115
Office Hours: Tuesdays, 14:00 to 15:00 in DTB B324 or by appointment

COURSE DESCRIPTION
Africa has often been sidelined from reaping the benefits of its own natural resources. From oil to minerals, forests, and land for agriculture, Africa has many of the world’s ‘resource-richest’ countries. However, many countries on the African continent have been described as having a ‘resource curse,’ where the more natural resources a country is endowed with, the less likely that country is to experience stable democracy and socioeconomic development. In this course, we will unpack this paradox to better appreciate the opportunities and challenges facing people living on the African continent.

Introduction: Unpack your stereotypes and place the continent on a map
At the beginning of this course, we will talk about some of our basic stereotypes of Africa and how these preconceptions might influence our implicit perspective of the continent. Many of our images of Africa are of famine, corruption, civil war and ethnic hatred, and whilst these issues are crucially important, these images often obscure more than they reveal about contemporary Africa. In parallel with examining our preconceptions about the continent, you will gain a basic understanding of African geographies from a natural resource perspective and be able to place some of the human and physical geography landmarks on a map.

An in-depth look at natural resources governance in Africa: from science to practice
The course readings will help you engage with scientific literature that theorizes and explains human-environment interactions within and beyond Africa. You will also read and hear from Africans themselves. You will learn that the ‘problems’ facing Africa do not stem from within the continent alone, but historical and modern-day global processes continue to impact the situation in almost all areas of Africa, rural and urban. We will critically examine and contest dominant discourses about the continent and bring in various worldviews including from African scholars, a number of whom will appear as guest speakers in this course.

Africa is also a place of dynamic change and of economic, political and cultural transformations. Therefore, the course focuses on continuities and changes in Africa’s relationship with the rest of the world. We will apply the concept of Global Value Chains as a main approach through which to understand and appreciate the various manifestations of natural resources development. From our perspective in Victoria, BC, Africa seems incredibly distant. Through this course, you will recognize that you actually are very much connected to the African continent, from a historical, economic, and cultural perspective.

Student engagement and ‘learning by doing’
This course integrates multiple opportunities for experiential learning, where you will interact with your peers to discuss historic and contemporary topics related to the sustainable use of natural resources in the diversity of African contexts. Through case studies, you will learn to see how the theoretical knowledge gained in this course can be applied by practitioners and policy makers in real-life settings. The course draws on examples and case studies from a wide range of countries, and students are encouraged to develop their knowledge of both continent-wide trends and specific countries and regions, recognizing the diversity of the continent. Through readings, class lectures, and student-led discussions, you will be encouraged to think and work independently. The course will expose you to the challenges facing natural resource managers in Africa, as well as the new forms of governance that are being put forth as possible solutions to these challenges. During class discussions, students will be encouraged to share their thoughts on previous and new forms of governance and the possible trade-offs and synergies between socio-economic development and resource conservation.

A bit about your instructor
I have lived and worked in over a dozen countries in Africa since 2012. I spent the most time in Cameroon, where I lived for over two years. I also spent significant amounts of time in Ethiopia, Zambia, Côte d’Ivoire, and Ghana. In these diverse settings, I supported developing country governments, donors (e.g. World Bank, German Development Agency), civil society, and the private sector to jointly develop viable solutions to climate change and sustainable development that fit the specific context. I look forward to sharing these experiences with you and am happy to discuss career options both inside and outside academia. At UVic, I am responsible for both teaching and research. I always strive to integrate my research into my teaching, so you can expect to learn about my research and be exposed to policy issues that are highly relevant to the current situation. My research focuses on forest governance, with particular attention to how land use decisions affect forests and the communities that live there, including how global food supply chain sustainability policies can be more effective and equitable. Please find more information about me and my research at my website: sophiacarodenuto.com. If you’re interested in pursuing higher education through a Master’s degree, I encourage you to check out my website to find out about opportunities for you to get involved in research.

COURSE INTENDED LEARNING OUTCOMES
By the end of this course, you will:

- Identify key natural resources (forests, water, minerals, land for agriculture) in sub-Saharan Africa and their distinct physical, cultural, social, economic, and political geographies.
- Describe different forms of environmental governance as discussed in class and how these have been adapted to African contexts.
- Actively apply critical thinking skills in discussing the relationship between natural resource use in Africa and the global economy.
- Carefully articulate your perspectives and opinions about the policy solutions currently being discussed surrounding global value chains and how these affect people and ecosystems on the African continent.

REQUIRED READING
Each week you will be responsible for reading, understanding, and engaging with the assigned material. A significant amount of the learning in this course is self-directed, meaning that you learn outside of the lecture by engaging with scholars and diverse voices (including African voices) to understand how other people have thought about the problems and issues we are discussing. Please keep up to date with the readings and come to class prepared with your notes from the readings.

This course does not have a textbook, but rather the reading list is provided below. You can find the links or pdfs on Brightspace. Although you will be expected to read some “classics,” I make an effort to ensure that you are reading relevant and current material, which means that some readings may change as the course progresses. If this happens, I will keep you updated.
COURSE SCHEDULE

Additional required readings are posted on Brightspace. Please keep up to date with the readings and come to class prepared with your notes from the readings.

(Disclaimer: The above schedule, policies, procedures, and assignments in this course are subject to change in the event of extenuating circumstances, such as changing schedules of our high-level guest speakers).
One of the functions of the course is to engage students with information and ideas presented by people with experience (often called experts) in a particular area. These are highly sought-after individuals who have taken precious time out of their busy schedules to inspire you and share their knowledge. Each of the invited speakers will present a specific point of view on a given issue.

One of the key learning outcomes of this course is that you become better able to analyze the information you hear/read/view and clearly articulate a thoughtful response to that information. Therefore, please pay special attention to the readings in advance of guest speakers and be sure to ‘google’ them so you are informed about who they are. Since you will likely only see this person once, taking full advantage of the class means you need to come to class prepared to discuss your reading for that week and ask questions of the guest speaker.

EVALUATION

Students must complete all evaluation components to obtain credit. Failure to complete an any evaluation component without permission from the instructor, will result in an ‘N’ grade, which equals a Grade Point Value of 0. Your final grade will be based on the following calculation:

Class participation: 10%

This grade category will also be evaluated based on your personal contribution to a 10-minute opening discussion that will be completed either alone or in groups. Beginning in week 3, each student will be assigned a date to lead an opening discussion by presenting a news piece from or playing a piece of music that relates to this topic of natural resources management in Africa.

Normally, this class has been designed with the expectation that students attend every lecture. However, I am aware that we are living in highly uncertain times and in-person gatherings in classrooms may pose risks. Therefore, I have made the effort to live stream or record lectures and you will not be penalized if you do not attend class in person. However, if you are not able to attend class, then you need to watch the recording in a timely manner and ensure that you are staying engaged in the class. I will make every effort to live stream class through ECHO 360, so if you are not able to be in class physically, then I expect that you attend the live stream through Brightspace. There should be a chat option for you to ask questions directly there.

Please note that lecture recordings are meant to be a supplement (not alternative) to synchronous attendance. Further, the audio and visual quality of these recordings cannot be guaranteed. Please let me know in advance if you are expecting to miss a significant amount of synchronous classes.

Much of your learning in this course revolves around interaction with your peers. Classes are designed to help you understand the complex materials, cases, and literature we will cover, and they are an important part of your learning experience. Lectures will also contain important guidance on the assignments. Students are expected to come prepared and to engage fully with the activities. If students have particular learning requirements, difficulties, or prior commitments that cause problems for attendance then please come and speak to me or email me as soon as possible.

Map quiz: 10%

Assignments: 80%

More detailed information about these assignments is on Brightspace.

Assignment 1: Country brief (20%) due October 15

Assignment 2: Film essay: Africa in the movies (20%) due November 19

Assignment 3: Global Value Chain Report Card (40%) due December 10

COURSE COMMUNICATION

For general questions regarding this course, please either ask during class or use the “Questions to the Professor” discussion on the Content page of Brightspace. The reason that I prefer this is because many of you will have the same questions, so I am hoping that all can benefit from my response. For personal matters that you would not like to share with your classmates, please come to office hours or email me directly. I will do my best to respond to all questions within 24 hours, except on weekends and holidays. Please aim to ensure the professionalism of your email communication. If you need help understanding professional communication, please have a look at this humorous post, which is actually pretty helpful: https://medium.com/@lportwoodstacer/how-to-email-your-professor-without-being-annoying-aef64ae0e4087#.k6bv7tyt

Brightspace

Brightspace will serve as the main avenue of communication in this course. Please monitor the page on a regular basis for course announcements, readings assignments and lecture handouts. If you are having difficulty logging in or password problems, contact the Computer Help Desk Email: helpdesk@uvic.ca, Tel: 250-721-7687

ECHO 360 Classroom live streaming and recording

Be aware that sessions in this course may be recorded to allow students who are not able to attend to watch later. The recording will be posted in Brightspace. Students who have privacy concerns can contact me and will have the option to limit their personal information shared in the recording. If you have other questions or concerns regarding class recording and privacy please contact privacyinfo@uvic.ca.

POLICY ON LATE ASSIGNMENTS
To ensure fairness towards those of you who have made the effort to hand in assignments on time, I will deduct 15% per day (including weekends and holidays) for assignments that are handed in late.

POLICY ON ATTENDANCE
Students are expected to attend all class sessions, either in person or by logging in to ECHO 360 live stream. If you are feeling unwell, please do not come to class. Rather, join us through the live stream. These will be recorded but the recordings are meant to be a supplement only and cannot replace synchronous participation. Due to the important nature of student participation in this class, you are expected to have assigned readings done before the scheduled class period so that you can gain the most out of class discussions and lectures. Frequent absences will make it difficult to stay on top of the material and negatively affect your learning.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY
It is every student’s responsibility to be aware of the university’s policies on academic integrity, including policies on cheating, plagiarism, unauthorized use of an editor, multiple submission, and aiding others to cheat. I reserve the right to use plagiarism detection software or other platforms to assess the integrity of student work. Plagiarism is the submission of work that is not your own. To present the work of others as your own is dishonest. All sources must be attributed, or there will be strict penalties. Please familiarize yourself with the following:

Policy on Academic Integrity: web.uvic.ca/calendar/undergrad/info/regulations/academic-integrity.html

If you have any questions or doubts, talk to me, your course instructor. For more information, see uvic.ca/learningandteaching/cac/index.php.

ACCESSIBILITY
Students with diverse learning styles and needs are welcome in this course. In particular, if you have a documented disability or health consideration that may require accommodations, please feel free to approach me and/or the Centre for Accessible Learning (CAL) as soon as possible (uvic.ca/services/cal/). The CAL staff is available by appointment to assess specific needs, provide referrals, and arrange appropriate accommodations. The sooner you let us know your needs, the quicker we can assist you in achieving your learning goals in this course.

POSITIVITY AND SAFETY
The University of Victoria is committed to promoting, providing and protecting a positive and safe learning and working environment for all its members. To ensure that all class members feel welcomed and equally able to contribute to class discussions, we will all endeavor to be respectful in our language, our examples, and the manner in which we conduct our discussions and group work. If you have any concerns about the climate of the class, please contact me.

COURSE EXPERIENCE SURVEY (CES)
I value your feedback on this course. Towards the end of term, as in all other courses at UVic, you will have the opportunity to complete an anonymous survey regarding your learning experience (CES). The survey is vital to providing feedback to me regarding the course and my teaching, as well as to help the department improve the overall program for students in the future. The survey is accessed online and can be done on your laptop, tablet, or mobile device. I will remind you and provide you with more detailed information nearer the time but please be thinking about this important activity during the course.

Student Support services

Learn Anywhere is the student support portal for a full range of student academic and support services. Services include: Centre for Academic Communication, Math & Stats Assistance Centre, Health Services, Library, and Computer Help Desk.

Online Conduct

The University of Victoria is committed to promoting critical academic discourse while providing a respectful and supportive learning environment. All members of the university community have the right to this experience and the responsibility to help create such an environment. The University will not tolerate racism, sexualized violence, or any form of discrimination, bullying or harassment. Please be advised that, by logging into UVic’s learning systems or interacting with online resources, and course-related communication platforms, you are engaging in a university activity. All interactions within this environment are subject to the university expectations and policies. Any concerns about student conduct may be reviewed and responded to in accordance with the appropriate university policy.

Sexualized Violence Prevention and Response at UVic

UVic takes sexualized violence seriously, and has raised the bar for what is considered acceptable behaviour. We encourage students to learn more about how the university defines sexualized violence and its overall approach by visiting uvic.ca/svp. If you or someone you know has been impacted by sexualized violence and needs information, advice, and/or support please contact the sexualized violence resource office in Equity and Human Rights (EQHR). Whether or not you have been directly impacted, if you want to take part in the important prevention work taking place on campus, you can also reach out:

University of Victoria Student Society

The UVSS is a social justice based non-profit run by students, for students and is entirely separate from UVic. As an undergrad student, you are already a member! We work on issues affecting students such as affordability, public transit, sexualized violence, sustainability, student employment, and much more. We fund clubs and course unions and have several advocacy groups. We also have a Food Bank and Free Store, a Peer Support Centre, and run your health and dental plan. We are here to support you, so please reach out to us at uvss.ca!

NOTE:

A note to remind you to take care of yourself. Do your best to maintain a healthy lifestyle this semester by eating well, exercising, getting enough sleep and taking some time to relax. This will help you achieve your goals and cope with stress. All of us benefit from support during times of struggle. You are not alone.
