Emerging Graduate Research Findings: Geography grad students share their fascinating research in 3-5 minute presentations

Geography Grad Students
Faculty of Social Sciences,
University of Victoria

Several Geography graduate students will offer succinct presentations to demonstrate the fantastic and engaging research being done in the department. Through these presentations, you can gain a keen understanding of the disciplines represented in geographical research within the department, investigate novel areas of potential collaboration, and improve familiarity among students and colleagues within the department. Presentations will be delivered in an inclusive and accessible format, meant to be enjoyed by a variety of academic and professional backgrounds.
