Course Overview

In this class, we will learn all about cognition and the brain through the lens of case studies. Most of these case studies involve lesion patients, but we will also cover some interesting neuropsychological disorders. I hope you find this content as interesting as I do!

Class structure

The structure for each week will be as follows: On Monday, we will generally read and discuss a review paper (or occasionally, an empirical paper) and introduce the topic for the week. On Wednesday, 1 or 2 students will present empirical papers, typically lending support to different models or theories related to our topic of interest. Depending on the length and complexity of the papers, either the entire class or half of the class will read each of the papers to foster discussion, which will take up the remainder of the class. On Thursday, we will conduct an in-class (or occasionally at home) activity as a class or in groups/ pairs. Activities may involve watching movies or light reading (typically of magazine or newspaper articles intended for the lay public).

Grading

Assignment I: 10%, Feb 13

Assignment II: 30% (5% proposal + 25% paper), Mar 20 (proposal), Apr 3 (final assignment)

Reading responses: 20%

Participation: 20%

Reading presentation: 10%

Final presentation: 10%

Extra credit: 2%

- Assignment I (10%)
 - In 1.5-2 pages (maximum) describe a research finding (from any field of psychology or neuroscience research) from the last 10 years that either:
 - a) Evidences the benefits of the single or group case study method or
 - b) That would be better addressed or augmented by the single or group case study method or neuroimaging methods
- Assignment II (30%)
 - For your final paper, you will find and present a case study of a patient that challenges a widely held view or theory of brain organization/cognition. Your case study cannot be one from class (although you may find other cases with similar lesions/ damage) but should challenge one of the theories covered in class. Your paper should include a summary of the patient's lesion and (spared and impaired) cognitive abilities and a discussion of how their profile challenges a widely held theory. Finally, you should address how (a) another theory or (b) a modification to the discussed theory would fit the presented data. Your paper should be between 8-10 (maximum) pages.
- Reading responses (20%)
 - Each week you will be assigned 2-3 readings, which you will need to comment on using Perusall. Please see Perusall Instructions document for instructions.
* There are 3 classes for which you will not need to submit a response: the class during which you are presenting, and 2 other classes (of your choosing). Any other missed responses will get a 0 grade. The 3 classes that you skipped (or if you do not skip, your 3 lowest scores) will be dropped.
- Participation (20%)
 - To get the most out of this class, participation in both class discussion and activities is key. Participation can take many forms including: showing up on time, being engaged, being respectful of others, asking for clarification, sharing insights, voicing, or demonstrating agreement or disagreement, raising questions of interest, responding to classmates' questions, etc. Your participation grade will reflect the entire semester (I will not be keeping track of the number of times you speak), so it is important that you try to engage with the material and your classmates on a regular basis.
* I will be sending a check-in email mid-way through the semester to update you on your progress regarding participation. You will then have the opportunity to increase your participation in the second half of the semester.
- Reading presentation (10%)
 - Using a form that I will send out on the first week of class, you will sign up to present one of the assigned readings in a short (~7-10 minute) PowerPoint (or other presentation software) presentation. The presentation should summarize the reading for a naïve audience (i.e., an audience that may not have read the paper). The presentation must include a summary of the background literature (that is necessary to understand the current study), the research question, methods, results, interpretation of results, and at least one limitation or direction/question for future research. For studies with many results, you may choose to highlight and present a few that you consider to be most significant.
- Final presentation (10%)
 - For your final presentation, you will share your final paper with the class in a data blitz format. You will have 5 minutes (+1 min for questions) to present your case, how it challenges a widely held theory, and how you would "solve" that problem.

You may use power point or other visual aids in your presentation. You will be assessed on your ability to describe and summarize the key features of your paper for a naïve audience in a concise presentation format. Just like a conference talk, the 5-minute time limit is strict and you will be cut off if you exceed it.

- Extra credit (2%)

- You can earn up to 2% extra credit toward your final grade by participating in research studies conducted in the Department of Psychology. One hour of participation earns you 1 SONA credit. Credits are given in 0.5 increments, with 2 credits required for a 1% increase in your final grade. For details on participating in research studies, go to the Department of Psychology web site: <https://www.uvic.ca/socialsciences/psychology/research/participants/>. You must be sure to assign your credits to this course (and this section of the course) no later than the last day of class, otherwise you will not receive extra credit in this course.
- If you do not wish to participate in research studies for some reason, but still wish to have the opportunity to earn an equivalent amount of extra credit, you may contact me to arrange for an alternative option involving an assignment. If you wish to select this option, you must notify me by no later than Mar 15.

* Students who have completed the following elements will be considered to have completed the course: 50% of reading responses, 2 assignments

- Failure to complete one or more of these elements will result in a grade of “N” regardless of the cumulative percentage of all other elements of the course. N is a failing grade and factors into GPA as a value of 0.
- In accordance with the University’s policy on academic concessions, “A student who completes all course requirements is not eligible for an academic concession”. Consequently, students can only request deferrals for the completion of required course components and not for non-essential course components.

Course Policies

1. Assignments: All written assignments should be written in 12-point Times New Roman font and double spaced with standard 1-inch margins. Any portion of your writing which draws on an outside source must follow APA citation guidelines (7th edition). Assignments must be turned in on time (notwithstanding exceptional circumstances). 1% will be deducted for each day late up to 3 days, after which 5% will be deducted per day.
2. Etiquette: In this class, you will be expected to follow the same standards for etiquette as are expected of any academic or professional (and definitely of a scientist/psychologist).

Respect: As with any class or work environment, you will be expected to demonstrate respect for your instructor, your colleagues, and yourself. While debates and disagreements are to be expected, it is important that professionalism is maintained at all times. This means refraining from any personal attacks (e.g., “you wouldn’t understand because you’re _____”) or phrasing/language that might belittle or hurt others (e.g., “how could you think that? That doesn’t make any sense”), whether intentional or unintentional. Instead, please practice positive language (e.g., “that’s a great point. Though I might add _____”). Keep in mind that others in the classroom may bring different and unique perspectives that may differ from your own but are no less valid. In fact, hearing diverse perspectives may even help you to better understand or engage with the research in question. Following these rules will help us to collectively cultivate a safe and warm atmosphere for discussion, which will support all our learning!

Note:* As with other STEM fields, Psychology has a history of excluding or marginalizing under-represented minorities (URMs). We can do our part to combat historical and current injustices not only through our work, but also through our practices. As you progress through this class, I encourage you to consider the role of privilege in who has the ability to conduct, and obtain access to, science, and to think about what you personally, and we as a field, can do to amplify the voices of URMs.

Phones and laptops: Please keep your phones away and turned off or on silent. While you may use a laptop during class if that is your preference, I would strongly suggest putting it away. This is a small discussion-based class and laptops can be a big distraction. You will be tested primarily on the readings so excessive notetaking will not be necessary. You will get the most out of this class if you are actively engaged and participating in the class discussions.

3. Presentations: As this is a seminar style class, you will be graded on oral presentations. There will be no substitutions for presentations. If you are a nervous presenter, I am happy to work with you towards the goal of presenting in class. I will also create a sign-up sheet for students who may wish to practice for each other. Keep in mind that the goal of these presentations is to practice oral presentation skills- I do not expect any of you to be experts, but I do expect you to try.
4. In-class Participation: As noted above, you are expected to maintain professionalism and respect in all class discussions and activities. A few other things to keep in mind: while discussions can be light and fun, and we will occasionally go off on tangents, please do try to keep your comments on topic. Similarly, while personal experience can often be relevant to the topic at hand, the goal of our in-class discussions and activities is to engage with the readings. Sometimes it can be interesting to relate the readings to a topic of personal interest or experience, to get the most out of this class, I expect you to go beyond the material you are most comfortable or familiar with.

UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA

Department of Psychology Important Course Policy Information Winter Session 2022/23

Accessible Learning

The University of Victoria is committed to creating a learning experience that is as accessible as possible. If you anticipate or experience any barriers to learning in this course, please feel welcome to discuss your concerns with me. If you have a disability or chronic health condition, or think you may have a disability, you may also want to meet with an advisor at the Centre for Accessible Learning (CAL).

Attendance and Absences

Attendance is important. Students are expected to attend all classes in which they are enrolled. Students may be assigned a final grade of N or debarred from writing final examinations if they fail to satisfy a minimum attendance requirement set by the instructor for lectures, laboratories, online course discussions or learning activities, tutorials, or other learning activities set out in the course outline.

Medical documentation for short-term absences is not required (approved by Senate). Students who cannot attend due to illness are asked to notify their instructors immediately. If illness, accident, or family affliction causes a student to miss the final exam or to fail to complete any required assignment/assessment by the end of the term students are required to submit a request for academic concession (see below).

Children and Pets

If you need to bring your children or pet to class, please do not hesitate to do so. It is understood that sometimes this is necessary due to care circumstances. However, please aim to have minimal class disturbance so that student learning is not impacted.

Class Recording and Auto-Captioning Statement

The instructor may record class sessions and those recordings may be made available to all students in the class via Brightspace. If you have questions or concerns regarding class recording and privacy please contact privacyinfo@uvic.ca

Auto-generated captioning may be enabled in this course. Auto-captioning is highly error-prone, especially for specialized terminology and proper names. Students are asked to refer to the audio feed for clarification of any errors. If you find captioning errors that are offensive, please contact your instructor and/or teaching assistant so that they are aware. If you require captions as part of an academic accommodation, please contact CAL.

Commitment to Inclusivity, Diversity, and Respectful Environments in the Classroom and Online

The University of Victoria is committed to providing a positive and supportive and safe learning and working environment for all its members. All members of the university community have the right to this experience and the responsibility to help create such an environment. The University will not tolerate racism, sexualized violence, or any form of discrimination, bullying, or harassment.

Please be advised that, by logging into UVic's learning systems or interacting with online resources and course-related communication platforms, you are engaging in a University activity.

All interactions within this environment are subject to the university expectations and policies. Any concerns about student conduct may be reviewed and responded to in accordance with the appropriate university policy.

Copyright

All course content and materials are made available by instructors for educational purposes and for the exclusive use of students registered in their class¹. The material is protected under copyright law, even if not marked with ©. Violations may result in disciplinary action under the Resolution of Non-Academic Misconduct Allegations policy \(AC1300\) or the Academic Integrity Policy, whichever is more appropriate for the situation.

Course Experience Survey (CES)

The instructor values your feedback on this course. Toward the end of term, you will have the opportunity to complete a confidential course experience survey (CES) regarding your learning experience. The survey is vital to providing feedback to the instructor regarding the course and their teaching, as well as to help the department improve the overall program for students in the future. When it is time for you to complete the survey, you will receive an email inviting you to do so. If you do not receive an email invitation, you can go directly to <http://ces.uvic.ca>. You will need to use your UVic NetLink ID to access the survey, which can be done on your laptop, tablet or mobile device. You will be reminded nearer the time, but please be thinking about this important activity, especially the following three questions, during the course.

1. What strengths did your instructor demonstrate that helped you learn in this course?
2. Please provide specific suggestions as to how the instructor could have helped you learn more effectively.
3. Please provide specific suggestions as to how this course could be improved.

Disclaimer

The above schedule, policies, procedures, and assignments in this course are subject to change in the event of extenuating circumstances.

Grading

In classes that are based on a percentage grading scheme, the following Undergraduate Grading Scale is used

Grade	A+	A	A-	B+	B	B-	C+	C	D	F
Percentage	90-100	85-89	80-84	77-79	73-76	70-72	65-69	60-64	51-59	< 50
GP Value	9	8	7	6	5	4	3	2	1	0

Rounding is only applied to the final grade and is rounded up at the 0.5% level (e.g., 84.49% is round to 84% and 84.50% is rounded to 85%).

Medical Documentation for absences

No medical documentation for short-term absences is required (Approved by Senate).

If you are seeking a Withdrawal Extenuating Circumstances or an Aegrotat grade, medical documentation may be required if relevant.

Ombudsperson and Academic Concerns

From the course calendar...

Depending on the nature of the academic matter of concern to the student, the order in which the student should normally try to resolve the matter is: first, the course instructor; second, the Department Associate Chair; third, the Dean of the faculty; and finally, the Senate.

If you are having an academic concern or problem that cannot be resolved with your instructor or the Department Associate Chair, you may wish to consult with the Office of the Ombudsperson (<https://uvicombudsperson.ca>). Current contact information for the office can be found here <https://uvicombudsperson.ca/contact/>.

Policy on Academic Integrity including Plagiarism and Cheating

The Department of Psychology fully endorses and intends to enforce rigorously the Senate Policy on Academic Integrity. It is of utmost importance that students who do their work honestly be protected from those who do not. Because this policy is in place to ensure that students carry out and benefit from the learning activities assigned in each course, it is expected that students will cooperate in its implementation.

The offences defined by the policy can be summarized briefly as follows:

1. Plagiarism. You must make sure that the work you submit is your work and not someone else's. There are proper procedures for citing the works of others. The student is responsible for being aware of and using these procedures.
2. Unauthorized Use of an Editor. The use of an editor is prohibited unless the instructor grants explicit written authorization.
3. Multiple Submission. Only under exceptional circumstances may a work submitted to fulfill an academic requirement be used to satisfy another similar requirement. The student is responsible for clarifying this with the instructor(s) involved.
4. Falsifying Materials Subject to Academic Evaluation. This includes falsification of data, use of commercially prepared essays, using information from the Internet without proper citation, citing sources from which material is not actually obtained, etc.
5. Cheating on Assignments, Tests, and Examinations. You may not copy the work of others in or out of class; you may not give your work to others for the purpose of copying; you may not use unauthorized material or equipment during examinations or tests; and you may not impersonate or allow yourself to be impersonated by another at an examination. The Department of Psychology has a policy of not making old examinations available for study purposes. Therefore, use of old exams without the express written permission of the instructor constitutes cheating by the user, and abetting of cheating by the person who provided the exam.
6. Aiding Others to Cheat. It is a violation to help others or attempt to help others to engage in any of the conduct described above.

Instructors are expected to make every effort to prevent cheating and plagiarism. This may include the assignment of seating for examinations, asking students to move during examinations, requests to see student identification cards, and other measures as appropriate. Instructors also have available to them a variety of tools and procedures to check for Internet and electronic media-based cheating. In instances of suspected or actual plagiarism or cheating, instructors, following prescribed procedures, are authorized to take steps consistent with the degree of the offence. These measures will range from a zero on the test or assignment or a failing grade for the course, probation within a program to temporary or even permanent suspension from the University.

Rights of Appeal are described in the Policy on Academic Integrity in the University calendar January 2023.

Prerequisites

Students who remain in courses for which they do not have the prerequisites do so at their own risk. Students who complete courses without prerequisites ARE NOT exempt from having to complete the prerequisite course(s) if such courses are required for the degree program.

Program Requirements

For more information see the UVic Calendar.

Registration Status

Students are responsible for verifying their registration status. Registration status may be verified using My Page, View Schedule. Course adds and drops will not be processed after the deadlines set out in the current UVic Calendar.

Students who do not attend classes must not assume that they have been dropped from a course by an academic unit or an instructor. Courses that are not formally dropped will be given a failing grade, students may be required to withdraw and will be required to pay the tuition fee for the course.

Request for Academic Concessions: In the Event of Illness, Accident or Family Affliction

- What to do if you miss the final exam scheduled during the formal exam period
Apply at Records Services for a “Request for Academic Concession”, normally within 10 working days of the date of the exam. Records Services will forward the form to the instructor. If the concession is granted, the instructor will determine how to deal with the situation (for example, a deferred exam). Where a concession is not applied for or where such application is denied, an N grade will be entered on the student’s academic record.
- What to do if you miss an exam other than one scheduled during the formal exam period
Do not apply at Records Services for a “Request for Academic Concession”. Instead, contact your course instructor (or designated teaching assistant) to let them know why you missed the exam and include the in-course extension form if required. Medical documentation is not required.
- What to do if you require additional time to complete core course requirements
Apply at Records Services for a “Request for Academic Concession”, normally within 10 working days of the end of the course. Records Services will forward the form to the instructor. If the concession is granted, the instructor will determine how to deal with the situation. Where a concession is not applied for or where such application is denied, an N grade will be entered on the student’s academic record if the missing work has been deemed required. Note, only required course components may be deferred.

Research Participation Opportunities with the Department of Psychology

The Department of Psychology offers multiple opportunities to participate in research studies over the year. Students are encouraged to learn more about the field of psychology by volunteering in these studies. Information about studies can often be found posted on notice boards around the Department as well as through our Participant Pool webpage at <https://www.uvic.ca/socialsciences/psychology/research/participants/>.
