ADEL GUITOUNI is an associate professor of management science, decision support systems and International Business at the Gustavson School of Business, University of Victoria. He developed a multi-disciplinary approach to teaching and professional activities, including his fourteen years of work with the Canadian government. He directed large scientific teams involved with major events and strategic initiatives such as the Vancouver 2010 Olympics and Paralympics Games and 2010 G8/G20 summits. He contributed to multiple criteria decision analysis (MCDA), supply chain management, value chain modelling, information systems, and distributed resource management literature. He is leading several research initiatives at the interface between sustainability, digitization and responsible decision-making. He is the co-founder of the Victoria Forum to bring together academics, policymakers, business leaders and members of civil society to address the significant challenges of our time. He completed his Ph.D. at Laval University in 1998.
