7. PROPOSALS AND REPORTS FROM FACULTIES

a. Faculty of Graduate Studies

i. Membership in the Faculty of Graduate Studies

Dr. Evans introduced the proposal. He reviewed the process undertaken to develop the proposal and the rationale for doing so. Dr. Evans commented on advice received that individuals involved in direct supervision of graduate students should have a formal appointment at the university and that emeritus status was not sufficient to bind individuals to university policies. He explained that the categories of membership in the Faculty were being revised to account for this requirement and also to create an affiliate category. Dr. Evans commented on the support for the revisions at the Faculty of Graduate Studies Council. He acknowledged that the Faculty had been unaware of the requirement to submit the membership changes to Senate immediately following approval by the Faculty. He said these sections of the policy document were now being presented for approval.

A concern was raised regarding the process for developing the proposed revisions and the lack of consultation with faculty members at large. It was also suggested that consultation with the Faculty Association should have been pursued.

In response to a question regarding the proposal to require an adjunct appointment, Associate Vice-President Faculty Relations and Academic Administration, Michele Parkin explained that a binding legal relationship was required in order to bind individuals to university policies and procedures. She advised that adjunct appointments were an existing mechanism available for this purpose. In response to questions and comments regarding mechanisms to ensure adherence to policies, Ms. Parkin stated that signing an agreement to abide by policies was not sufficient. She noted that ensuring protection for graduate students was important and was a primary driver for the proposed revisions.
Concerns were raised about the use of adjunct appointments because of the lack of a university-wide process for granting adjunct appointments and differences in departmental process in this regard. Concerns were raised about the administrative burden associated with applying for adjunct appointments, the inability to do so in advance of retirement and the resulting lack of predictability. It was noted that, while emeritus faculty members were proceeding with applying for adjunct status because they care about students, they might not be happy with the requirement to do so. Dr. Evans responded that he did not think the requirement to apply for adjunct status was imposing a big impediment.

Dr. Evans responded to a question about why assistant and associate teaching professors are not regular members in the Faculty.

A question was raised regarding the process for renewal of adjunct appointments. It was noted that it would be the responsibility of individuals to apply for renewal.

A concern was raised about the impact on graduate students if the process for retiring faculty members to apply for adjunct status is onerous and lengthy. Dr. Evans responded that, to date, no students have been impacted by the change and that the Faculty of Graduate Studies was taking steps to support implementation of the change. He added that, once the Faculty became aware of the requirement for Senate approval, implementation had been halted.

A comment was made that the policy seemed like a good measure from the point of view of graduate students. A further comment was made in support of the policy’s intent to provide further protections to graduate students. It was suggested that administrative challenges with the process for adjunct appointments should be addressed, but should not prevent moving forward with this policy change.

Prof. Cassels summarized the discussion. He said he heard common agreement that some further mechanism was required to bind emeritus faculty members who are supervising graduate students to university policies and procedures. He added that concerns had been noted regarding whether the proposed mechanism was the appropriate one. Prof. Cassels acknowledged that some members of Senate who supported the intent of the change might vote against the proposal because of a concern with the proposed mechanism and that he would interpret a “no” vote as a message to the Faculty of Graduate Studies to think further about the mechanism for achieving the desired intent.

Motion: (S. Evans/M. Garcia-Barrera)
That Senate approve the following sections of the proposed +Membership in the Faculty of Graduate Studies policy attached in Appendix A: Sections 1.1, 1.2, 1.3; Section 2; and Sections 4.1, 4.2, 4.3.
